HUGE DAMAGE DONE BY HURRICANE

Loss in State Estimated at $5,000,000 as Result of Fierce Storm Yesterday

RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 5.—With wires to the North Carolina coast
nearly all down it was impossible early today to confirm a report which spread like wildfire throughout the state that a tidal wave, the accompaniment of yesterday's storm which devastated this state, had inundated Ocracoke island, below Hatteras,
with great loss of life.

No Word of Disaster

Ocracoke island lies at the entrance to Pamlico sound, thirty-five miles from the mainland. It and connecting islands form the great natural breakwater off the North Carolina coast. A high tide would undoubtedly do great damage at this point because of the narrow entrance to the sound. Wireless messages sent from the Hatteras station and picked up further down the south Atlantic coast gave no word of any catastrophe at Ocracoke and this despite the fact that a detailed report was sent of the activities of the Ocracoke life saving station, a few miles north of the island.

Damage $5,000,000

Meager reports, coming over crumpled telegraph and telephone lines,
estimated the total of property damage in the hurricane yesterday at $5,000,000. Violent rains, coupled with a wind that at times attained a velocity of 100 miles an hour, swept the whole state, but it was along the coast that the greatest damage was done.

Shipping off the dreaded Hatteras
inlet felt the full force of the storm.
The three-masted schooner George W. Wells was driven ashore three miles north of the inlet and battered so that today she was a total wreck. By hard work the life saving stations at Hatteras, Ocracoke and Durant's Neck rescued twenty men, two women and two children who were aboard her. The revenue cutter Seminole is racing to the relief of two ships who sent calls for assistance.

HUERTA OFFERS TO AID U. S. REFUGEES

Proffers Mexican Resources to Let Americans Leave Country
First Class

AID WILL PROBABLY BE REFUSED

De Facto President Sends Personal Representative to See Secretary
Bryan

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 5.—Via Galveston.—It was said at the American embassy today that the American refugees probably would not take advantage of an offer by the Mexican government to supply Americans with first class passage out of the country.

Consul General Arnold Shanklin,
who has had charge of the American exodus, said that the $100,000 appropriation by congress probably would relieve the situation and enable all Americans to leave Mexico first class.

Huerta Would Pay

Provisional President Huerta caused to be issued a statement to the effect that the Mexican government would pay from its own resources the differences between first class passage for Americans from Mexico to the United States and the third class
"steerage" accommodations offered by the United States government to refugees.

"The personal sentiments of the constitutional interim president of the republic toward citizens of the United States residing in this country are benevolent and just," said Huerta's statement, "to the extent that, their government having recommended without justifiable cause that they leave the country and while lamenting the disposition which caused alarm, as well as the fact that many Americans have decided to leave the country, the president has resolved to recommend to the proper authorities, in view of the fact, as stated in the newspapers, that the government of the United States finds it possible to furnish only third class passage, that they offer in a spontaneous and kindly manner to cover the difference which exists and even provide special trains and gratuities, to the end that the Americans arrive in their country with greater comfort and means than they otherwise would have."

Huerta Sends Man to U. S.

Aboard the Ward liner Esperanza, which sailed from Vera Cruz late yesterday is Manuel Zamlinaco Inelan,
a former Mexican ambassador to the United States, whom Huerta is sending to Washington as his personal representative, to discuss the question with Secretary of State Bryan.
While Inelan is ostensibly a special envoy, going to Washington in the same capacity in which John Lind came to Mexico, it is believed by Americans that the former ambassador is really going to the United States as a financial agent, to endeavor to negotiate a large loan for the Mexican government.

Rumors persisted here today but could not be confirmed, that Huerta
will resign in order to become a legiti-mate candidate for president. Members of his cabinet stoutly declared that he would not resign. Foreign Secretary Gamboa denied that there had been any communication between him and John Lind and was at a loss to account for the stories in the United States that negotiations were continuing.

BLAME MILITANTS

LONDON, Sept. 5.—Militant suffragettes were blamed for a fire that today did $1,500 damage to Dulwich college, an aristocratic South London boarding school. Kerosene cans and oil soaked rags indicated that the fire was incendiary and suffragette literature was scattered about the place. Only prompt discovery of the fire saved the school from total destruction as it had been effectively fired. The pupils were on vacation.

The Fond du Lac Athletic club, the Hedding law, today announced its first bout of the season. On Thurs-

Chicago will meet Billy Frazier, a local middleweight, in a ten round go.

500 AT INQUEST

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 5.—More than 500 persons were present today
when the inquest to determine responsibility for the death of four-year-old Mary Lohman, run down by the automobile of Roman Schubert, opened here. Schubert is held on a murder charge.

LOCOMOTIVE OF WHITE MOUNTAIN EXPRESS AFTER COLLISION

The locomotive of the White Mountain Express of the New Haven Railroad plunged into the rear sleeping cars of the Bar Harbor Express at Wallingford, four miles from New Haven. Many were killed and more injured. The locomotive was a heavy one, such as is used on mountain roads of the west. In fact, it was a duplicate of the locomotive which on June 12 smashed into a sleeping car at Stamford, killing six. In the foreground is seen the debris of two sleeping cars. They were smashed to bits and most of those occupying them killed or badly hurt.

AT MERCY OF ANCIENT SIGNALS

Engineers' Protest Against Antiquated System Produced No Reform, the

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 5.—
The New Haven railroad must show what steps it has taken to avoid trenching its patrons.
Following the introduction of testimony before the interstate commerce commissioners here today tending to show that officials of the road had ignored protests of the road engineers against the system of signals in use and with the long list of wrecks in the past two years a matter of record, Commissioner Mc-Chord today ordered that the railroad submit to him all records of the company, minutes of the meetings of the board of directors and other data to show what steps the road had taken for the improvement of its safety appliances since the bridgeport wreck of 1911.

Five Trains in 10 Miles

The court room in the federal building here fairly buzzed with excitement today when John C. Kelley, a train dispatcher, told how five passenger trains were packed onto ten miles of track on the morning of the Wallingford wreck, which claimed twenty-one lives; how Charles Henry Murray, acting as flagman of the Bar Harbor express, did his work without a watch, and according to his own admission had never qualified as a flagman and how engineers
often overran block signals.

Murray, who is boyish looking and apparently still in his twenties, told a straightforward story, but it differed materially in parts with that of Conductor Brad C. Addams of the same train.

Conductor Addams said he had often told Murray that he wanted
"long flagging" on his train. Murray said no one had ever given him instructions. Addams admitted that of his own knowledge he could not say that Murray went back to flag the White Mountain express. He said he could distinguish a figure through the fog off the rear end of the train,
but could not swear it was Murray.
The flagman swore he did go back to flag the express. But where he stopped he could see the outline of the rear car of his train. Other witnesses testified that they could see signals over 200 feet through the fog, and according to the rules, Murray was supposed to go back 1,800 feet.

Tells Tale With Tears

Murray told with a voice that broke at times, his story of the wreck. His lips twitched and his eyes filled with tears as he told how he heard the White Mountain express rushing toward him. He tried to tear the wrapping of a fuse with his teeth
as he held a lantern in his hand, in hopes that he might stop the train.

DAVIES PREDICTS PROSPEROUS ERA

Says Tariff and Currency Measures Will Pass and United States Will Enter Prosperity

SAYS WILSON IS MORE POPULAR

People Like the President
Better; Urges Wisconsin
Democrats to Be Progressive

DAVIES' DICTUM
This country will soon embark upon a period of unprecedented prosperity.
The administration tariff and currency measures will be passed.
President Wilson has obtained a remarkable hold on the voters.
The democratic party has demonstrated that it is the party of progress.
Wisconsin democrats are and must remain progressives.
The administration is making no discrimination between the progressive members of the party who supported Wilson and those who supported Speaker Clark.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 5.—Following is an interview with Commissioner of Corporations Joseph Davies, before he left Milwaukee to return to Washington late Thursday night. Davies said:

"It is accepted as a fact in Washington that both the tariff and currency measures fostered by the administration, will be enacted into laws in the near future. With these questions settled, and with the establishment of stable conditions in the business world it is generally accepted that there will be increased activity in the country to the extent that we will embark on a period of exceptional prosperity.

"One of the most significant political developments now noticeable is the attitude of the country toward President Wilson. I have been traveling for the past ten days in the Mississippi Valley and the extent of the popular commendation among all classes of men is as remarkable as it is gratifying.

"The democratic party has heretofore been charged with being a party of negation. It has been charged with being incapable of controlling itself in the enactment of constructive legislation. The president has demonstrated that, under his leadership, minorities in our party are harmonized and controlled and the country's faith in the redemption of platform pledges is being rapidly justified.

"The duty of Wisconsin democracy is very clear. It must be square on its platform proposals and in its candidates with the spirit and character of the Wilson administration.
It must be progressive in both; otherwise it invites certain and deserved defeat.

"There are no lines drawn by the administration between progressive

WANT LA CROSSE TO DOUBLE BONUS

National Board of the Reformed Church Favors Bringing School to This City

MAY COME UP AT BOARD DINNER

Question of Increasing the Bonus as Urged by the Board Members to Be Taken Up Tuesday

Whether or not the city of La Crosse shall offer the sum of $15-000, or of $30,000, in addition to a twenty-acre site, as an inducement to the German Reformed church to locate its seminary, college and academy here, may be decided at the Six O'clock dinner that is expected to be given by the board of trade Tuesday evening. Dr. J. M. G. Harms, D. D., of Rochester, N. Y., will appear at the dinner to press the advantages of the institution and to urge that the sum be made $30,000.

A resolution passed last night by the church board in its session at the home of Rev. E. Vornholt, puts that body on record as favoring the change, and conveys to the board of trade the board's belief that if the bonus is increased to $30,000 the school will come to La Crosse.

The action of the trustees is simply advisory. The proposal finally made by board of trade must first be approved by the three sectional synods, and then by the general synod,
all of which meet in the near future.

The decision to take the subject
up at the board's banquet was reached this afternoon at a meeting at the La Crosse club attended by President Wm. Doerflinger, Secretary
John Utermoehl and E. S. Hebbard, for the board, and Rev. Vornholt and Rev. L. D. Benner, of Baltimore, for the church.

The church trustees, who were shown over the proposed site by Secretary Utermoehl yesterday, expressed themselves as satisfied with it. The secretary understands that the synod may accept $15,000, but that in the opinion of the trustees
the larger sum should be raised to make sure, as there is need of funds and an ample offer would tend to overcome the opposition of an element in the church councils that is opposed to moving the institution.

ROBBED BODY FOUND

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—The body of an unidentified man, his clothing stripped of all valuables, was found in the rear of a building on West Madison street today. The man was well dressed but his clothing bore
no laundry marks. There were no bruises on the body and the viscera will be examined to discover whether he was a poison victim.

STRONG CITY, Kas., Sept. 5.—Its unlawful for mules to bray at night

council passed an ordinance making mule braying at night an offense and providing a penalty for owners and the mules.

JEROME ARRESTED FOR GAMBLING

Thaw's Nemesis Pinched
on Warrant Sworn
Out by Coaticook
Citizen

MONTREAL, Sept. 5.—It is reported here on good authority that Judge Gervais of the king's bench court this afternoon issued a writ of habeas corpus calling for the production of Harry K. Thaw in Montreal at once. It is said the writ was obtained by the two Canadian members of Thaw's legal staff, Attorneys Green-shields and La Flamme of Montreal.

A special train is being held here to take Greenshields and La Flamme to Coaticook.
The writ, if already issued,
was issued by Judge Gervais privately, as any superior or supreme court judge has the right to do. The clerks of the courts and the writ officers this afternoon denied any knowledge of the writ, saying that no formal action relative to Thaw had been taken today. The report that the writ is already in the hands of Thaw's lawyers, or soon will be, was very persistent and generally credited.

Judge Gervais this afternoon
personally denied that he had issued any writ of habeas corpus or any other writ in connection with the Thaw case.
Nevertheless Attorney La
Flamme of Thaw's counsel, left Montreal on a special train for Coaticook this afternoon carrying with him, it was generally believed, a habeas corpus writ for Thaw's appearance
there.

COATICOOK, Sept. 5.—The board of inquiry this afternoon found Harry K. Thaw deport-able on two counts, entering Canada by stealth and having been an inmate of an asylum
within five years of his entry.
The board ordered Thaw deported immediately, but Thaw's counsel immediately entered an appeal and it was said that without this the report of habeas corpus issued at Montreal would act as a bar to immediate deportation.

COATICOOK, Que., Sept. 5.—William Travers Jerome, former district attorney of New York, and nemesis of Harry K. Thaw, was arrested today by a Canadian policeman on a charge of gambling and was placed in jail incommunicado.

The special deputy attorney general sent to Canada by New York state to regain possession of Thaw,
was led through the streets with a hostile hooting, yelling, jeering mob of men and boys at his heels and was locked up. In the same cell that Thaw occupied when he was first arrested on Canadian soil.

Call U. S. Consul

While Jerome paced up and down
in his cell, not allowed to receive visitors or talk to newspapermen, Dr.
Kiehl, superintendent of the asylum
at Matteawan from which Thaw escaped almost three weeks ago, was on the long distance telephone in communication with United States Consul Daniels at Sherbrooke, in an effort to bring about Jerome's release.

Meantime the board of inquiry was sitting on Thaw's deportation case, but nobody outside the lawyers and Thaw was paying the slightest attention to it.

While waiting with their high-powered automobile yesterday hoping to be able to start home with Thaw, the New York state officials and some of the newspapermen started a game of poker in Jerome's gray car. They played openly and made no attempt to conceal their actions. A crowd of Coaticook men and boys gathered about and many of them were openly hostile to the New Yorkers. The town is almost wholly in sympathy with Thaw.

Citizen Swears Warrant

Milford Aldridge, a citizen, went to the police and told them that the players were gambling, playing poker for money. He said he saw money passed. Aldridge willingly swore to the complaint and early today Policeman John Andrews walked in

THIS IS ANSWER GIVEN TO MAYOR BY JOHN WEBBER

Sorensen Says Plan Is Satisfactory to Him and the Matter Will Be Arbitrated by Board

SAYS ORDER VIOLATES THE RULES

Quotes from Commission Regulations to Prove that Dugan Cannot Go On Nights

WOULD SPOIL ALL DISCIPLINE

Effect on Men if Orders Are Obedied Would Be Bad Says Webber in His Letter

To simplify the proceedings
and avoid a multiplicity of hearings attorneys for Chief Webber have suggested that the question of law be certified to the circuit court, the parties reserving the right to be heard by counsel and to appeal to the state supreme court for final decision. Mr. Webber is willing, and it is expected the matter
will be put up to Mayor Sorensen tomorrow morning.
The significance of this action
on the part of the chief is that it serves notice that the fight is now to go through all the courts
until it is settled beyond further appeal.

Police Chief John B. Webber this morning submitted the question of authority, as between himself and Mayor Ori J. Sorensen, to the police and fire commission with the request that that body secure an opinion from the attorney general of the state.

That he will abide by whatever decision the commission makes in the matter was the substance of the answer delivered to the mayor this morning by the chief.

Mayor Sorensen immediately after the receipt of the chief's reply said
the plan was perfectly satisfactory to him.

In the chief's letter to the mayor and in his communication to the commission he expresses doubts as to the mayor's legal authority to dictate to the department, maintains that that portion of the order changing Captain Larry Dugan from day to night duty is in conflict with a rule of the commission and that the carrying out of the orders would not only fail to improve the service but on the contrary would seriously impair discipline.

To Have Lawyers

Chief Webber has consulted attorneys on the matter and requests the commission that he be permitted to express his views at the hearing through counsel.

Some doubts are expressed today
as to whether or not Attorney General Walter C. Owen will rule on the matter. On other occasions a member of the police board sought advice from Madison and was informed that the question should be referred to the city attorney.

J. E. Langdon, president of the police and fire commission, today
said the board would in all probability be willing to sit as an arbitration body. He will not set a date for the hearing until the official request of Mr. Webber is received.

Opinions Varied

The legal points involved in the controversy are causing no end of discussion among the city's legal lights and there are nearly as many different opinions on the matter as there are local lawyers.

Letter to Mayor

The letter of Chief Webber to Mayor Sorensen follows:
HEAD COME
"La Crosse, Wis., Sept. 5, 1913.
"Hon. O. J. Sorensen, Mayor:
"Dear Sir—On the 29th of August,

ders:

"Order No. 2: To further im-

I hereby order that you will at once night force.

"Order No. 3: For the betterment

THE TRIBUNE'S
Daily
Short Story

TUTORING PAMELA

By JANE OSBORN

Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Tom Jarrold adjusted his spectacles with precision, opened the "Solid Geometry" to the fifth proposition and drew his chair close to the table. Pamela Desmond on the other side of the table placed a pair of round eyed spectacles on her nose, opened her book and drew her chair nearer to the table. Mr. Jarrold took up a pencil and examined its point, and Pamela did the same, at which Jarrold colored a little and cleared his throat.

"Ahem!" echoed Pamela, and then looked over the top of her absurdly large spectacles so penitently that Mr. Jarrold was disarmed. "I am sorry I mimicked you," she said.

Jarrold ignored this and plunged valiantly into the geometry lesson. "We wasted so much time last week," he said.

Pamela was affectionately turning over the well worn pages that she had studied. "I thought I had been working so hard since you came," she said, with a sigh. In the next ten minutes Mr. Jarrold tried to focus Pamela's mind on the mysteries of the fifth proposition.

"You see, Miss Desmond--"

"Don't you call me Miss Desmond," snapped Pamela. "It sounds as if you were cross with me. That day we went riding up the mountain together you weren't like this. It is just when you wear your spectacles and got on that schoolma'am manner. There was an old maid up at college that taught me Latin that you make me think of now."

"I am paid by your father to teach you mathematics," said Jarrold sternly. "If it weren't for that it would be different. Then, of course, I would be glad to do as you wanted me to."

"Let's go riding up the mountain again today," teased Pamela, leaning over the table and trying to close his book over his fingers. "Come on, please. We have studied almost an hour."

"But you have only three more weeks before college opens and you have to take your deficiency examinations. I have given my word to your father to get you through this book. So long as I stay here I shall insist on teaching you."

"I will go tell Michael to saddle the horses and then you will have to go with me," Pamela had pulled off her spectacles, jumped to her feet and had run to the door. But Tom reached the door before she did and barred the way. "I am in charge of your studies and I insist that you go on with your work. I shall not allow you to go."

"You!" exclaimed Pamela, the color of anger coming into her cheeks. "You not allow me! Let me out, I say!"

Still Tom barred the way, and Pamela clapped her muscular small hands over his wrist. "You treat me as if I were a mere child!"

"You are," said Tom, "and a very foolish child, too."

"I am nineteen," she said, "and you are only twenty-five. Besides, my father is paying you and if I tell you I want you to take me riding up the mountain instead of teaching me geometry you are obliged to do it. I would get some one else to go with me only there isn't any one. If you don't take me I will go anyway. I will make Michael give me the horse."

Pamela's voice was shaking with excitement and she was digging her fingers into Tom's wrist. "I will go with you now," said he, his own voice a little uncertain, "but if I do I shall not remain here. I shall speak to your father tonight."

"Very well, there are more tutors where you came from," said Pamela with a toss of her head, "but now you have given in. I won't be disagreeable. I hope I didn't hurt your wrist," she said.

In a quarter of an hour they were off up the mountains, their lunch strapped in a knapsack to Tom's back, and all day, till late afternoon, they rambled on horseback over the mountain and wooded path. That night when Tom went to his room to dress for dinner he had time to think it over.

For the past year he had been working on a large watershed dam in a nearby mountain and, when in the early summer this work drew to a close, he had accepted an offer to go west to take up a similar construction in the early autumn. It was a good offer and it was worth waiting for, but in the meantime he had two or three months of leisure. It had occurred to him to tide the time over in tutoring. There were always wealthy city people in the mountains during the summer and he could surely find among them some young boys--he forgot that girls, too, go to college--who would be glad to have his services as a tutor in college mathematics and engineering. In the meantime he could brush up his own mind on the theoretical side of his profession and have the opportunity to take a little rest. So he sent an advertisement to be posted in the local postoffice and received a communication from Mr. Desmond, one of the wealthiest men in the region.

Desmond's letter was short. "My child, Pam," he said, "is a sophomore in college but has failed in mathematics examinations. Will you accept position as resident tutor at my summer home for months of July and August for two hundred dollars a month? Come at once if agreeable. I have looked up your record and find it O. K." And Tom, having heard of Mr. Desmond's high business reputation, sent back a special messenger accepting the post.

There he met Pamela, who turned out to be a very pretty, sunburned, tumble haired girl. She had failed in college mathematics and had to pass her deficiency examinations before she would be readmitted. Tom foresaw no trouble at first--that is, until he began, about the third day of his residence, to feel that the personality of Pam was getting a much deeper grip upon him than the subjects of solid geometry and trigonometry were upon the fickle mind of Pam. She talked hours with him about her sports and her horse, and he found himself spinning out long accounts of his own experiences, his plans for the west and the problems of his work as an engineer. In the meantime they had got over very little geometry. They had had one or two heated arguments, and these always ended by making Tom more in love with Pamela than ever.

But now he had definitely decided to leave. He couldn't teach her mathematics. That was obvious. She apparently refused to try, and he was too much in love with her to force her. So that night when Mr. Desmond came home from a business trip Tom went to him and Mr. Desmond, who admired the young engineer, listened to his explanation patiently. At last, when he had heard him out, Mr. Desmond said:

"Well, if you can stand it, I don't mind her not learning anything. It is worth the money to me just to know that she is out of trouble. She is such a tomboy, she is apt to go off by herself in the mountains, and that is unsafe. She won't have any girls here to visit her. She can't abide girls. Since her mother's death she has been pretty lonely. I spend what time I can with her, but I am busy. Too bad she didn't have a brother--such a girl as that. So you will stay--won't you?" said Mr. Desmond. "Don't go till you have had another talk with Pam."

Tom went back to his room that night without giving his answer. "The idea of being looked upon as a harmless sort of nursemaid," he thought to himself. "I would just like to show Desmond that I am not quite so gentle as I look--I would like to show him."

However, the next morning he met his pupil on an open porch for their lesson as usual. Pam was in one of her docile moods this morning.

"I am sorry that I was disagreeable yesterday," she said. "But didn't we have a good time in the mountains afterward? You know you are the only person I ever knew--except dad, of course--who can enjoy the woods and things with me. I wish I was an engineer and could go out west and ride out there--"

She paused and Tom only felt the thumping of his own heart at his side. "You must think I am very stupid about the geometry," she looked down and a tear glistened in her eyelash. "I could have studied harder--only--only really and truly I didn't want to go back to college. I hate college, there are so many girls there. I was almost beginning to learn something about the geometry, you made it so clear--but I don't want to go back. I want to ride in the mountains and--"

Then it occurred to Tom that perhaps a miracle had been performed; that perhaps this Pamela, this heartless, untamed little Pamela really had a heart, perhaps he, too--

He didn't stop to think it over. He hurried to her and put his two hands on the arms of her chair and looked down at her.

"Pamela, dear, would you, could you--Pamela could you possibly marry me?"

Then, later, when they were talking it over for the fiftieth time that day, Pamela said: "You see, I had to tell you myself, because dad said once that no man would ever dare propose to me because I was so cross and snappy. So I made up my mind if I ever fell in love I would have to break the ice myself."

ASKS FOR SENTENCE

RACINE, Wis., Sept. 5.--Jacob Audie, on the verge of delirium tremens, asked a policeman to lock him up Wednesday night to prevent his helping of sausage and doughnuts, mournfully regarding his empty plate.

Observing his pensive expression Aunt Sarah kindly asked, "Tommy, won't you have some more doughnuts?" "No'm!" the poor lad replied with feeling emphasis, "I don't want the I got now!"--Harper's Magazine.

Too much. Tommy, having disposed of the helpings of sausage and doughnuts, mournfully regarding his empty plate.

Daddy's Bedtime

How the Miser's Horse Rang the Bell

JACK and Evelyn were both very fond of horses. Whenever they saw a poor old nag on the streets drawing a heavy load they were very sorry for him.

"I am sure when you are older you will be glad to read the story I am going to tell you as it is told by the poet Longfellow," said daddy.

"Many years ago in Atri, an old town in Italy, there lived a man who was very stingy. He was a nobleman and had once lived very splendidly, but he grew older he became a miser. He sold all his handsome clothes and jewels and furniture and rented every bit of his land and all his houses that he might have more gold to count over. He even sold his fine horses, all save one favorite old horse that had carried him safely through many wars when he fought for his king. But he hardly fed this horse, and in winter it shivered in cold stall.

"One day the miser said: 'Why should I spend money keeping up that useless old horse. I will turn him out on the public road, and he can pick up living there.'

"So the poor lame old beast went hobbling about, picking up a mouthful of grass here and there by the roadside as he could, barked at by cross dogs and chased by bad boys with sticks and stones.

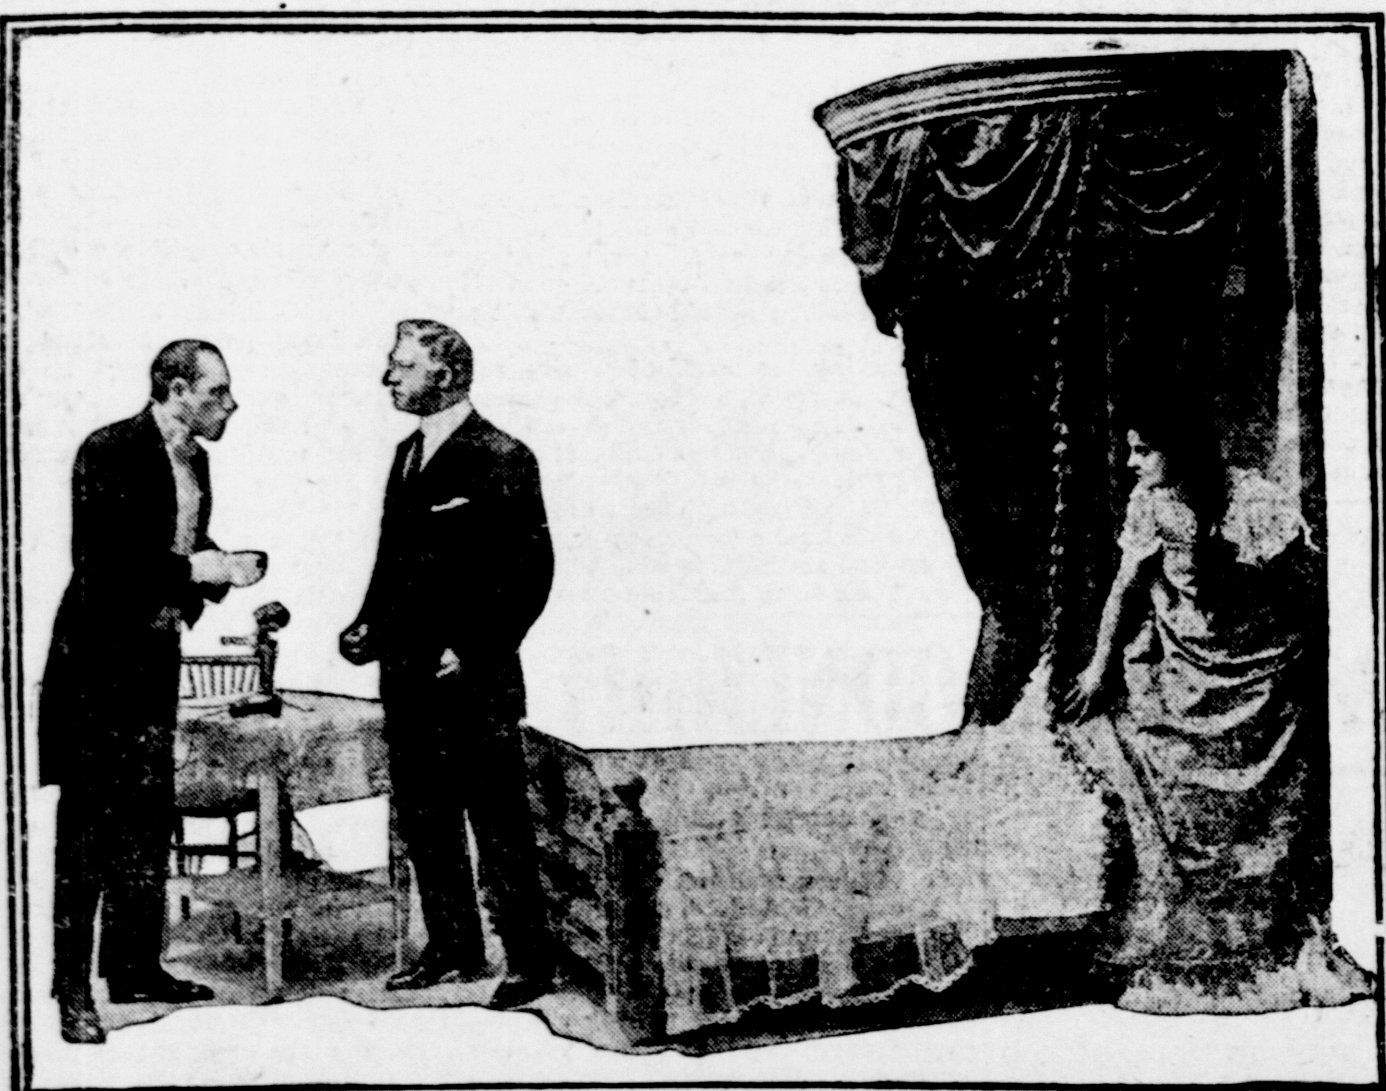

"Now, it happened that the king had caused a big bell to be hung in the market place of the town. The rope hung down where every passerby could reach it.

"The king had ordered that whenever any one in the town felt that he had been wronged he should ring the bell and call out the judge and people hear his story. Then the judge should decide what should be done about it. This idea of the king's did much good. Many unhappy persons who could not get justice any other way got it by ringing the bell.

"As time went on the rope grew old and raveled at the ends. So one passerby one day mended it with a bit of vine.

"One summer day when the sun was shining its hottest the bell pealed loudly and long. All the people rushed to the market place to see who rang the bell. When they reached the square where the bell hung all they could see was the old miser's half starved horse, with eager eyes, nibbling at the vine at the end of the rope. It was thus he had rung the bell.

"The judge came in his long robes, and when he saw the poor old beast he heard how his rich master was starving him after a life of faithful service. He called the miser before him. He ordered him to thereafter feed and clothe his horse comfortably or he should be punished."

LIGHT ON THE NEW CHINESE REVOLUTION

In the last Outlook is an article which those who have been puzzled and surprised by the present revolution in China will welcome for the exact information as to the causes of the revolt which it furnishes. The article in question is from the pen of F. Chang, a Chinese student at Harvard university, and it dispates some superficial opinions which have arisen in connection with the revolution.

In the first place, the present war, says Mr. Chang, is not between the north and the south, but is between the extreme radicals on the one side and the central government on the other. As is well known, southern China is much less conservative in its general attitude than is northern China, the stamping ground of the deposed Manchus. In this case, however, the southern vice-roys are not only in fear that Provisional President Yuan Shi Kai is about to set himself up as a dictator, but are surprised and disappointed that they are not getting the "squeeze"—an other word for graft—which they collected under former systems of government. This latter fact takes away some of the glamor that might hover around men supposed to be fighting an ambitious tyrant for a more liberal form of government. The railway loan concluded some months ago with five European powers, the same loan that President Wilson declined to enter, is an issue. It is charged that Yuan completed this loan against the express opposition of the national assembly. The provisional president defends his action by pointing out that the provisional assembly which sat Peking before the opening of the national assembly formally sanctioned the bill providing for the loan.

Yuan besides being charged in general with being arbitrary and arrogant, is accused of complicity in the assassination of Sung Chiao-jen, candidate for the premiership of the Nationalist party. The Chinese writer admits that the trial of this case proves the present premier,

Chao Ping-chuen, was implicated in it, but he is inclined to believe that no proof of Yuan's complicity has been shown.

As shedding light on the strange sequel to China's surprising revolution and still more surprising desire for republican government, the brief sketch of conditions is well worth while.

JEROME PRESENTS AN UNPLEASANT SPECTACLE

Little sympathy is wasted upon Harry Thaw, in whose tragic story the vicious and aoid predominate. Public interest in his retention in prison is largely confined to a feeling that if he is a dangerous person he should be restrained. Open minded people are not apt to find satisfaction in the incarceration for punishment of a man whose crime was less contemptible than the life of his victim.

However, to us there appears to be one angle from which the present Thaw conflict is worthy of note and comment. We refer to the damnable spectacle of William Travers Jerome hounding Thaw over the earth, relentlessly seeking vengeance. Vengeance for what, one cannot say. Perhaps because as prosecutor Jerome failed to convict Thaw; perhaps because Jerome was friendly to White, Thaw's victim; perhaps because he fears Thaw should be released. Surely, no wholesome, manly reason. In this day good people want those who have gone astray reformed, restored. Punishment excepting as the safety of society demands it is wrong. Civilization can hold Thaw in no greater contempt than Jerome.

PUT THE "TORY" IN "PREDATORY"

Lieut. Gov. Tom Morris' Labor Day speech at Clinton seems to have put a burr in the sandal of the standpatter. The burr was that prickly little word "predatory." Ouch! The standpat Sentinel hastily removes its sandal and attempts to slip the aggravating burr into that one of the "seats of the mighty" in which Tom aspires to sit. No doubt the upholstery will absorb it, and so we turn our passing interest to The Sentinel's suggestion that "public extravagance" at Madison "has been running riot until it has reached the point where it is manifest even to Governor McGovern that the state will be bled as white as wool unless the voters call a halt."

The governor called attention to this "manifestation" in a message during the closing days of the legislature, and immediately after adjournment he gave evidence of his sincerity by arbitrarily raising the salaries of three of the employees which the state finances in his immediate political family. Claim Agent Mahon, whose office is a sinecure excepting during legislative sessions, Mr. Wilbur, the governor's clerk, and the governor's stenographer are each presented with an additional gratuitous annuity out of the state treasury. Let the Sentinel complain that while the sounding brass proclaims an era of economy the veal whiteneth until the prodical son must turn away and return to his hucks for sustenance. This will be meat and drink for The Sentinel when again it turns to the support of friend Ike. That change for the flunkies will do for the nickle in the slot that starts the music, for "party solidarity" will not keep the paper that put the "tory" in "predatory" from giving aid and comfort to "the enemy."

The fact that ex-King Manuel is pawning his jewels comes as a surprise. Evidently there were a few that the chorus girls didn't get.

In view of the fact that there are several Bulgarians yet alive, it is hard to see how the war can be considered ended.

One who is an expert at performing on a mouth organ should be equally successful at eating corn off the cob.

There is coal enough to last 7,000 years. That assures us plenty of steam heat for our next reincarnation.

The United States now has two living ex-presidents. Mexico and Venezuela will never equal this record.

The Finisher
A witness in a particular case had been examined by the lawyer for the plaintiff and was turned over to the lawyer for cross examination.

"Now, then, Mr. Smith," began the legal one, "what did I understand you to say that your occupation is?"
"I am a piano finisher," answered the witness.
"Yes, I see," persisted the lawyer, "but you must be more definite. Do you polish them or do you move them?"

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

"We Have With Us Tonight"
They called on him to give a speech. The chairman praised his eloquence. And told the heights that he could reach. Referred to his pre-eminence. Worked in a story old and trite (Toastmasters always have to do it). Got off, "We have with us tonight." Then called his name and said, "Go to it."

And this, as well as I recall, Is how he thrilled us, one and all; "Er—hem! Kind friends, I didn't know. I was going to call on me. I haven't much to say, and so I won't say much. I do not see—Ahem—er—hem—I do not see. Why I was called on anyway. I don't why they called on me. I really haven't much to say."

"I always like to be with you. I hope I make my meaning clear. I'm very proud and happy, too; I'm very glad that I am here, I hope to meet with you again. I'm very glad, let me repeat. To be with all you splendid men. I hope again with you to meet."

"I haven't much to say to you. Except that I am very glad That I am here. I thank you, too. For such a splendid time I've had. I'm very glad that I am here. I hope to come again some day. That I am here I'm glad—I fear That this is all I've got to say."

The Fatal Day Was Near

"Never mind, mamma," said she sweetly. "They are his last wishes."

His Lucky Arrival
An Irishman, in order to celebrate the advent of a new era, went out on a lark. He didn't get home till 3 o'clock in the morning and was barely in the house before the nurse rushed up and, uncovering a bunch of soft goods, showed him triplets. The Irishman looked up at the clock, which said 3, then at the three of a kind in the nurse's arms, he said:
"I'm not superstitious, but thank heavens that Oi didn't come home at twelve!"
—National Food Magazine.

His Price
A boy who had done something to incur the wrath of his mother and then had taken to his heels was hotly pursued for some distance by her. Finding it was useless to continue the pursuit and almost beside herself with rage, the old lady shouted at the top of her voice:
"I'll give anybody six pence to catch that boy!"
The boy instantly stopped, and, turning round, shouted in reply:
"Give me the sixpence and I'll come back!"

Discouraging
Mr. Jordan was touring by motor-car, and arrived at a crowded village inn quite late one evening. There was no spare bed to be had, which was a great disappointment, as he was tired, and very much disliked the thought of driving farther that night.
"Haven't you at least a bundle of hay you can give me?" he demanded of the landlady.
"There isn't a thing left," she answered, "except a bit of cold roast beef."

Polk Miller's Story of the Dark and the Mule

An old negro went into a drug store in Richmond and said: "Boss, will you please, suh, call de colonel on de telephone?"
"Yes," and he called the colonel. The old dorky said: "Colonel, dat ar mule done stall right in de main street right out here in front of de store."

"Yaas, suh; I done tied strings round his ears, but he didn't budge. 'What's dat? What's dat?' Yaas, suh, I build a fire under him, it didn't do nuthin' but scorch de harness."

"Yaas, suh; yaas, suh; I took de things out, but he wouldn't budge. 'Yaas, suh; yaas, suh, What's dat?' 'No, suh; no, suh, colonel, I didn't twist his tail."

"Yaas, suh; yaas, suh, another gemman twis' his tail; he look like a northern gemman."

"What's dat, colone? Yaas, suh, dey tuk him to de hospital."

"No, suh; no, suh; I ain't heard yit."

Pruritis a Severe Form of Eczema

A Method of Home Treatment that is Very Effective.

There is probably no other remedy so well known as S. S. S. for the blood. And for this reason it is the one remedy invariably called for in treating pruritis and other skin diseases. But there are many people who do not insist upon having S. S. S. and are easily persuaded to try something else "just as good," so they are told. If your blood is thin; if your skin is irritated with eczema, lupus, tetter, psoriasis, or any other blood humor; if you are troubled with pimples or boils, do not permit yourself to be talked into buying something else, but insist upon S. S. S. It is really a remarkable remedy. It contains one ingredient, the active purpose of which is to stimulate the tissues to the healthy selection of its own essential nutriment. And the medical elements of this matchless blood purifier are just as essential to well-balanced health as the nutritious elements of the meats, grains, fats and sugars of our daily food. These facts are brought out in a highly interesting book on skin diseases, compiled by the medical department of the Swift Specific Co., 184 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. It is mailed free, together with a special letter of advice, to all who are struggling with a blood disease.

TO BE PROMINENT IN DIPLOMATIC CIRCLE

Mme. Dumba.
Mme. Dumba, wife of the new Austrian ambassador to this country, will be one of the most prominent women in the diplomatic circle when she comes to Washington this winter. She is a talented woman who has spent much time in the brilliant capitals of Europe and is a descendant of one of the oldest Balkan families.

His Qualifications
Mrs. Bagrox—Tell me, professor, will my daughter ever become a great pianist?
Herr Vogelschnitzle—I cannot tell. Mrs. Bagrox—But has she none of the qualifications necessary for a good musician?
Herr Vogelschnitzle—Ach! Yah, matam; she has two hands!

Cruel
"What are you thinking of, Beatrice?" inquired Mr. Hainer of his wife, one morning while they were at breakfast.
"I am dreaming of my youth," replied the woman.
"Well," replied the brute, "I thought you had a faraway look in your eyes."

What if it Misses?
"There!" said Hooligan. "There, Mither Mooligan, see that wond'ful tinned, an' here comes the thrain! Watch now an' let the wind whistle through your whiskers! Begorra, but 'tis a sight to make a man—there, look at that now!"
The train whizzed past them and was swallowed up in the darkness of the tunnel.

"An' what, Mither Mooligan," said Mr. Hooligan, "what do you think of that now?"
"Well, Mr. Hooligan," said Mr. Mooligan, "I'm thinking what would happen if the train missed the hole, so I am."

A Good Idea for the Farm.
Stretch a cord from your house to the barn or road. Two feet to one side stretch another cord. Draw a line on the ground with a sharp stick along the cords. Take up the cords, hitch up your team and plough out a few furrows between lines, then dig down about eighteen inches and fill in with small stones picked off the plowed ground around the farm. Put a good layer of sand on top, and you have a path always dry and never slippery, even in the winter.—Farm and Fireside

A Romance of Extraordinary Distinction

The Marshal

By Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews
Author of The Perfect Tribute, etc.
Copyright, The Bobbs-Merrill Company

"The Emperor gave a short nod to the general, who still kept his hand on the dark little head. 'Make him kneel,' he said. 'Marshal, your sword.'"

"The blade clattered out of the sheath in front of the baby's eyes, and he blinked as he looked up, but did not draw away an inch, and as the young general pressed him to his fat knees he put his hands together and shut his eyes, for he thought he was to pray to the good God. So the child knelt before the Emperor, thinking of his prayers. It was still for a moment, and all the officers stood up silent, and then the Emperor took the marshal's sword and struck the baby's shoulder a light blow with the flat of it."

"Rise, Chevalier Francois Beaupre," he said clearly, and in the pause he added, with a look in his eyes as if one gazed forward: "Some day, perhaps, a Marshal of France under another Bonaparte."

The grandmother's voice stopped, and the garden and the entry that had been full of the jingle of harness and the clatter of steel, the stir and color of soldiery, was suddenly hushed and empty. The ghosts of the great which had risen at the simple magic of her memory dissolved into mists of past years. But the glory and the awe of the name of the Emperor hung about them. The children huddled, their eyes devouring her, their faces close, listening. A little girl's voice spoke.

"And, grand-mere, it was—"
"It was Francois," she said, and laid her hand on his shoulder. "The sword of the Emperor touched him here—I saw it." The child's frame quivered as if he felt again that blow of the accolade.

Then Tomas, always unimpressed, began to sing jeeringly:
"Francois Beaupre,
Nous devons l'admirer—
Notre grand chevalier,
Francois Beaupre—"

And the spell was broken. The children scattered, shouting, out into the sunshine of the garden. But Francois stood at his grandmother's side, not hearing or seeing them; staring at the heavy panels of the oak door as if he beheld the figures of Napoleon and his generals pass that way again, and in his child eyes smoldered the inner light of a seer of visions.

CHAPTER II. The Stranger.

At the end of the long street of Vicques, next the church, stood the house of Francois Beaupre, the father of little Francois and Tomas and the rest. The villagers called him "Le Francois" and his wife "La Claire"; this showed them of a certain importance, for one spoke as if there were no others. The house was the largest in the village, and its great earth-floored entry, leading at the right into the living-room, at the left into the stable, was twenty feet square. There, on sunny spring days, the grandmother would sit on the long bench against the wall, always with her knitting, always with the children about her, and the cows would file past and into the wide doorway at the left, switching their tails, with mild big eyes gazing gently at the group. In front was the flower garden, and little Lucie's head was not so tall as the patch of red peonies whose great blossoms the breeze tossed in one corner of it.

A beautiful garden it was, the finest in the village, yet this was not the pride of "La Claire," the wife of "Le Francois." She had two vantages, the neighbors said: her tiny feet and her garden, but not this garden of flowers. Outside of the village, half a mile away, on the road to the old chateau, were the fields where, laid out in trim rows, flourished all the vegetables of all the villagers. The little houses sat in the long street, the old vicie Roman, the Roman road built before the Christian era and still kept up. The houses were set too closely to allow space for the great beds of cabbages, beans, peas, turnips, parsley, endive, chicory, carrots. So the cottages nestled elbow to elbow in the street, and the gardens in the fields outside—one might see them by looking—stretched even long fingers through the valley almost to the slope that led to the ruined castle.

Francois, the lad, liked to be sent there with his mother's big basket to bring back vegetables for the family meal. It was quiet in the long sunny rows of growing things, and the earthy smell was pleasant, and a boy who had much to think about could think well as he broke off stems of chard or dug into the clean damp brown earth for lettuce—"la salade." Moreover, he would ask sometimes:
"Must I hurry today, mother? Might I go on to the chateau for a little while?"

And often La Claire would smile at the boy and answer: "But yes, my Francois, you may go; there is no hurry."

And then came hours to be remembered. Francois remembered them many years after. He would set the basket carefully in a safe spot at the very end of the row of white-grown lettuce heads, and then he would cross the field, brushing through the millions of scarlet poppies, higher than the blades of the wheat, and climb up the steep hillside and scramble over the fence, and be in the old castle. It was a good road, because the people of Vicques used it often for going to and from the pastures at the foot of the mountain, with the cows. At the end was a gate which closed the way to wagons or cattle; however, a person on foot might open it and go beyond. Inside were the ruins.

On an afternoon in July in the year of 1820, Francois, being ten years old and a dreamer, came alone through the gate and sat down with his short legs dangling over an ancient wall, fifteen feet sheer down. He sat there, quite comfortable and secure, and kicked his heels, and thought of his brilliant future, and also of the story of the great dog and the treasure. This ruin, the ancient chateau of Vicques, had a legend. Each child of the village knew it before he could remember how—it had been so with all of them always—grandfathers had heard it from grandfathers for hundreds of years. The tradition ran that ages back, in the time of Caesar, fifty years after Christ, a Roman governor in this Gallic province had built a formidable castle on this hill outside the village—"Vicus," the Romans called it simply, "the village"—and "Vicus," changed to "Vicques," it has stayed. The castle had great granaries to hold the grain which the governor tortured from the peasants and sent to Rome to sell. This little "vicus" was on the main road to Rome, which made it convenient for the governor. So he grew rich by oppression, and the gold wrung from the people he piled in cellars deep in his castle. When it came to be a great amount he sent far to the north and got a huge dog, and this dog he trained to a terrible fierceness, so that any one coming near him in the long underground corridors where he guarded the treasure was sure to be torn to pieces, except always the governor. The governor knew well that the people hated him, even those closest to him, and this savage beast was his only friend and his reliance.

GATES SPECIAL IN RECORD RUN HERE

"Give You a Million" Sleeps while Train Breaks
Time Mark Between Milwaukee and La Crosse

Traveling at the rate of over 64 miles an hour, the special train carrying Charlie Gates, better known as "Give you a million Gates," arrived here at 9 o'clock this morning, having broken all previous records for passenger train time on the Milwaukee railroad between Milwaukee and La Crosse. Conductor Griggs and Engineer Murphy were in charge of the train. Although the morning was far advanced, neither Charlie nor his friends who were with him were out of their comfortable berths. Remembering the big time a few days ago when Gates came through the city, reported to be on his way to New York City, the clerks on duty, the yardmen and a number of engineers, hearing of the train's arrival, flocked around it. All they were greeted by was the smiling face of a colored porter. "Charlie is recuperating for his arrival at Minneapolis," was all the porter had to say.

As soon as engines could be changed the train pulled out, in charge of Conductor Bausman and Engineer Brooks. An hour after the train had left La Crosse, Operator Bullick made the remark, translated from another operator, west of here, that "Charlie was going just a little faster than the law allows."

Tightwad in Chicago

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Charles G. Gates, millionaire spendthrift, was in Chicago today, enroute from Kansas City to Minneapolis, and, according to careful observers, he didn't spend a cent.

Gates was in Chicago only five minutes—which may have had something to do with his astonishing neglect to shower coins here. While a fresh engine was being attached to his special train, he escorted his mother to a taxicab that was to take her to a hotel. It is a matter of record that the chauffeur stared from the station without he usual Gates lip.

Gates' special train from Kansas City to Chicago burned up $775, whereas he and his mother might have made the trip in a Pullman for $25. The run from Chicago to Minneapolis is causing the young millionaire to peel off about $700 more.

BIG STORM FLOODS NEW YORK SUBWAY

Antiquated "L" Roads and Surface Cars Come Back to Favor After the Rain

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—New York's antiquated elevated railways "came back" early today when the entire subway system was put out of commission by an extraordinary downpour of rain that amounted almost to a cloudburst.

From the vicinity of the Grand Central station up to considerably beyond Fifth street the subway was flooded so that in some places the water reached almost to the platforms and the operation of trains was impossible.

The torrential shower began shortly after 9 o'clock last night and continued until early today, accompanied by terrific thunder and lightning. The thousands participating in the morning downtown rush were delayed because of the stopping of the subway trains but they jammed the "L" trains and surface cars to capacity and the city really suffered little serious inconvenience.

Married in Her Everyday Clothes.

A nineteen-year-old Leavenworth girl eloped with a Leavenworth boy of the same age and after the marriage ceremony she called up her mother and broke the news. "You didn't get married in that dress you wore today?" was the first thing the mother said, but she got around to the "Bless you, my children, bless you," before she hung up the receiver.—Kansas City Star.

WILL GIVE BIG SUM FOR ROADS

State to Spend Ten Years
in Improving 65,000 Miles of Highway at Immense Cost.

TO SPEND $1,200,000 IN 1913

Many Counties Are Taking Advantage of Opportunity and Are Securing Funds

When the governor of Missouri started his "good roads" campaign, he "started something" for fair and with the Wisconsin farmers enthusiastic over the recent passage of the state highway aid law, the indications are that within a few years the Badger state will have roads unexcelled anywhere in the world. The Wisconsin state highway commission, including John A. Hazelwood of Jefferson, Chairman John S. Owen of Eau Claire and John H. Van Doren of Birnamwood have already begun to plan for the elimination of the mud hole from Wisconsin.

The commission faces an enormous undertaking. The reformation of 65,000 miles of highway is quite some little job. On the start there was no organization but constant efforts on the part of the commissioners and good roads enthusiasts in all parts of the state have resulted in an organization that will greatly simplify the commissioners' task, what would have been an almost impossible task.

The work is under the direct charge of the state highway engineer. Under him is a department of surveys and plans, with fifteen men employed to examine plans and specifications for state aid of roads and surveys. In the bridge engineer's department there are seven assistants. There is a division of road inspection with a corps of engineers to keep in touch with the road work being done throughout the state, inspection to be made at least every two weeks.

Finally there are seven division engineers, with three assistants in every division. The headquarters of the division engineers are at Milwaukee, Madison, Green Bay, Grand Rapids, La Crosse, Eau Claire and Ashland. Every phase of the road improvement work, from planning and everything to inspection and direct supervision, is provided for.

Work is Slow

The work will be necessarily slow. But, for the fiscal period from June 30, 1912, to the same date 1913, practically a thousand miles of road were completed. For the 1913-14 period it is expected that at least 1,200 miles will be added to this total. At an average rate of 1,000 miles a year it will require ten years before the full system has been completed.

For the year ending last June, in addition to the regular appropriation provided in the original law for state aid, an additional appropriation of $450,000 was made by the legislature. The original appropriation was $350,000. The state automobile tax added $28,000 to his fund.

For the coming year, the amount of "aid" to be expended by the state for improvement of highways will be $1,200,000, and there will be an additional $40,000 brought in by the automobile tax.

Coming into Line

At the start, comparatively few counties in the state accepted the proffered aid of the state. The list of co-operating counties, however, is growing larger each year. The northern Wisconsin counties, officials report, have been the first to avail themselves of the state's offer but the southern counties are rapidly coming into line.

The type of roads being built differ with the locality and the nature of the material at hand. Where there is heavy traffic a higher type of road is being built than in counties where the traffic is comparatively light. In some sections many of the roads are of the permanent surface type, such as concrete. In other places stone macadam roads are being built, in others gravel and in the less thickly populated sections place dirt. The majority of the roads are of the nine foot variety although many have been widened to eighteen and twenty feet.

Sleep at School.

A new wrinkle in school work comes from St. Faith's school, Wandsworth England, where tired children may sleep in hammocks during lesson hours. The children so favored are four or five years old, the infants of the school. Every afternoon a siesta in hammocks for tired children is provided, and they may sleep between or even during lessons. The infants are encouraged to rest because it is contended by a Miss Wild, who devised the hammocks, that the mind of a tired child can not retain the lessons taught.

Altogether Too Successful.

Quizzer—"What's the matter, old man? You look worried." Sizzer—"I have cause to. I hired a man to trace my pedigree. Quizzer—"Well, what's the trouble? Hasn't he been successful?" Sizzer—"Successful! I should say he has! I'm paying him hush-money."—Judge.

BROKER

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—The select university "set" at Evanston learned with some surprise today that Mrs. Jaqueminia D. Russum, arrested in Denver in company with a wealthy broker, will not return to the pretty bungalow that was a popular society center for members of the Northwestern university faculty and their wives.

Thomas F. Russum, her husband, has filed suit for absolute divorce charging infidelity and naming George W. Keeler, the Denver broker, with whom his wife was arrested in a Denver hotel a few days ago.

At the same time the divorce suit was filed in Chicago, attorneys for Russum in Denver filed suit for $75,000 against Keeler, alleging alienation of Mrs. Russum's affections.

MONROE MAY HAVE A WOMAN CLERK
 Wife of Sparta's Late County Clerk May Be Chosen Pending Decision, Owen Rules
 MADISON, Wis., Sept. 5.—That a woman may perform the duties of a county official until such time as the court has determined the question as to whether she is eligible to the office is the opinion of Attorney General Owen given to Senator Howard Teasdale of Sparta.
Wife is Capable
 The question arose out of the situation in Monroe county, where the county clerk died. Senator Teasdale says the county clerk's wife is capable and the question is asked whether the county board may elect her to fill the vacancy.
 Attorney General Owen points out that the courts have held that a woman is ineligible to county office and says that there is no statute in this state authorizing a woman in express terms to hold a county office and it also appears that the supreme court has held that a woman who is not an elector of the county in which she resides is not eligible to the office of county sheriff.

No Deputy in Service
 In the Monroe county situation the county clerk who is now dead did not appoint a deputy and it is desirable now to call a special meeting of the county board to appoint a successor but as the law requires that a call for a special meeting of a county board shall be filed with the clerk, and as there is no clerk in Monroe county, another question of law is presented.
 Attorney General Owen says that in view of the fact that there is no county clerk in Monroe county at the present time and no deputy, it is difficult to see how a regular meeting may be called and held. He says, however:
 "I see no reason why the members of the county board may not waive the notice to be given by the clerk on a request for a special meeting of the county board signed by all the members thereof, in which they waive notice of such meeting. This, in my opinion, will make the meeting held in consequence thereof, a regular meeting, especially if all the members of the county board to attend the same."

On these inadequate ideas will always repose, and must repose, the general practice of the world.  The mass of mankind will never have any ardent zeal for seeing things as they are; very inadequate ideas will always satisfy them. On these inadequate ideas will always repose, and must repose, the general practice of the world. That is as much as saying that whoever sets himself to see things as they are will find himself one of a very small circle; but it is only by this small circle resolutely doing its own work that adequate ideas will ever get current at all.—Matthew Arnold.

Light on the Spot.
 An attachment has been made to the revolver by a French inventor by which the weapon in the hands of a greenhorn is as deadly as in those of a dead-end shot. A small and powerful electric lamp is mounted on the weapon in such a manner that a circle of light is projected upon the target and the bullet will strike the center of the ring. This particular location is marked by a dark spot, and this spot being placed over the heart of an adversary and the trigger pulled the bullet cannot fail in its deadly work.
Critics, Take Notice.
 Great writers cantingly criticised by small writers—of whom Dr. Parr might be happy to say, that they have profundity without obscurity—perspicuity without prolixity—ornament without glare—tenseless without barrenness—penetration without subtlety—comprehensiveness without digression—and a great number of other things without a great number of other things.—Sydney Smith.

Prolific.
 "Where do you get the plots for your plays?" "I have never used but one," replied the noted dramatist, "and I swiped that from 'Ingomar the Barbarian.' I have used that plot in a war play, two rural dramas, a problem play, and now I'm working it up into a musical comedy."

ESCAPED INSANE PATIENT CAPTURED

William Kersether Found Near Galesville Today by Police of That Place

William Kersether, the insane man who escaped from the La Crosse county asylum for the insane at West Salem last Saturday, nearly a week ago, was found this morning near Galesville by the police of that place. Superintendent Oliver Gullickson was notified and the man is being brought back to the asylum.

How the man survived without food, other than that taken from crops growing in the fields is a mystery to the superintendent. When found this morning he did not appear dangerous but showed clearly that his mind was weak. Reports all week reached the asylum that Kersether had been located but they all proved futile.

U. S. MARSHAL LIBELS RIVER STEAMER HERE

The steamer Morning Star was late yesterday libeled by United States Marshal Appleby of Madison at the request of C. H. Culver, of Dreshach, Minn., owner of the launch into which the steamer crashed near the bridge recently. The boat was tied to the upper end of the west sheer boom of the wagon bridge. The steamer, making a landing, was caught in the wind and hit the craft. Officers of the boat maintain the launch was in a dangerous place and the accident was unavoidable.

The amount of damages asked is $500. After signing a bond for appearance the Morning Star was permitted to continue her trip down river.

WIFE DISAPPEARS WITH MATE'S ROLL

MARINETTE, Wis., Sept. 5.—Passengers on a northbound train, passing into Marinette, were surprised to see Joseph Sprague, from Mountain, Mich., open a suitcase filled with feminine apparel and throw garment after garment out through the car window. When they learned the circumstances, they did not blame Joseph.

After Joseph, who has been traveling through northern Wisconsin with his pretty young wife, had paid the fares, his spouse asked for his money, saying some "tough customers had lapped the roll." Joseph handed it over. Soon after wife developed a long thirst and went forward to get a drink. She never did come back and the police are looking for her.

DOG BANDIT AGAIN AT WORK IN CITY

Thirty-two Chickens Is the Toll of Canine Desperado Last Night Say Police Today

The dog "bandit" that for months has been terrorizing chicken fanciers and who has given the police force one of the hottest chases it ever enjoyed, renewed his depredations last night when he entered the coops of three La Crosse citizens and killed a total of thirty-two chickens.

The dog case is made the more interesting in view of the fact that another dog was "convicted" recently on "circumstantial evidence" and shot by order of the police.

Carl Berkman's place at 1231 South Fifteenth street, was the first place visited by the desperado and eight chickens were put to death. Sixteen more were killed at Albert Hogan's, 1224 South Sixteenth street, while Louis Larson, 1228 South Sixteenth street lost eight.

The police have found no clue to the bandit so cleverly has he covered his "tracks."

GOLF STARS PLAY UNSTEADY GAME

Travers Beats Herreshoff After Both Play Game Alternately Brilliant and Poor

GARDEN CITY, L. I., Sept. 5.—Jerome Travers ended five up on Fred Herreshoff on the first round today in the national amateur golf championship tournament. Chick Evans was two up on Anderson at 18 holes.

The Travers-Herreshoff match was a strange mixture of good, bad and indifferent play. Travers started with extreme care and until he reached the ninth it looked as if he was going to make a fine score. No tyro, however, could have played the ninth and tenth worse. Then he settled back into form and played the next seven holes in a total of one stroke under par. On the 18th, however, he drove twice into the pond and surrendered the hole which was approximately 6 to par 3. That made Travers 79 to 82 for Herreshoff.

Herreshoff's first star play was the 35 foot putt which he ran down on the fifth for a 3 to par 4. He needed it, for Travers was dead on his third. Herreshoff on the fourth hole missed his putt at two feet which cost him the hole. He missed another putt of less than a yard at the sixth, which enabled Travers to get in the hole for a half. At the eighth Herreshoff sank another fine putt of medium length. After such evidence of unsteadiness, the crowd wisely decided that Herreshoff was too much of a gambler and attempted to hedge on wagers.

Then the current changed direction. Travers abandoning the ninth hole after he had been in the pit beyond the green and got out short. Nettled, he plumped into a trap on his second at the tenth and was barely out on his next, consequently he registered six there to his rival's four, exactly as he did on the ninth. Herreshoff grew over-confident and lost the next five holes in succession in astonishing fashion.

JEROME ARRESTED FOR POKER GAME

to the Coaticook house, where Jerome was in the lobby, surrounded by newspapermen. The policeman presented a warrant to Jerome and the New Yorker read it there. Without a word of comment and betraying neither surprise nor anger, Jerome told the policeman he was ready to go with him and they started from the hotel.

Like wildfire the news spread that Jerome was under arrest. A mob quickly gathered and surrounded the officer and his prisoner, laughing at Jerome and jeering him. Friends of the former district attorney rushed after the crowd and begged the officer to allow Jerome to give bail, but the policeman was powerless to do anything but take his man to the lockup. Throughout the march to the jail, Jerome did not say a word. He refused to comment on his arrest or to say whether or not he played poker for money. After he was locked up in Thaw's former cell, he was not allowed to be seen.

In Jail an Hour

After Jerome was in jail almost an hour, his friends found Magistrate McKee, who admitted Jerome to bail. Attorney Verret, assisting the New York authorities, said that the case doubtless would be adjourned to give Jerome opportunity to fulfill his mission to Canada, should the immigration authorities deport Thaw. Jerome and Thaw were not in the same jail at the same time as Thaw, now held as an immigrant, was in the detention room at the railroad station today. Jerome was locked in the town jail.

Lost 54 Cents

The newspapermen who played with Jerome said the game was "penny ante" with a "ten cent limit." A suitcase was used as a table in the big gray automobile. One report said that Jerome lost 54 cents.

Jerome left Coaticook this afternoon in his gray car, the same in which the alleged gambling took place. He did not announce his destination and his associates admitted that it would not be surprising if the New Yorker fails to show up at his hearing tomorrow morning. He is given eight days in which to plead and if he is not on hand tomorrow, H. Verret, K. C., adviser of the New York state authorities can enter appearance for him and cause a continuance.

HUSSA BREWERY PLANS TO BUILD

It is said that the brewery plans to increase the capacity of its plant largely with the new capital. The controlling interest in the brewery is owned by Oscar, Emil, Hugo, Amalie, Ernst and Otto Hussa, all of Bangor. They will retain their control in the reorganized company.

HARTWELL BESTS CANADIAN LAWS

La Crosse Attorney Successful in Utilizing Same Statute Worrying Thaw to Free His Client

The immigration laws of Canada, now receiving so much publicity because of their connection with the case of Harry Thaw, have, according to word from Edmonton, Saskatchewan, Canada, just been successfully brought into play by Attorney Fred H. Hartwell of this city, in securing the release from the Edmonton penitentiary of a mysterious and comely young lady who gave her name as Grace Stoddard but whose real identity is unknown to the Canadian authorities.

The prisoner was found guilty in January by a court at Port Arthur of being one of a party who had been for some weeks very busy in successfully relieving the Hudson Bay stores and other large Canadian establishments of their valuable furs and diamonds, the amounts taken aggregating many thousands of dollars. The rest of the party were not apprehended.

Her attorney this afternoon had nothing to say regarding her identity other than that she is not from La Crosse and he admits that she has influential affiliations in New York, Chicago and St. Paul.

Her sentence was two years in the Edmonton prison but by the novel procedure of invoking the immigration laws her attorney succeeded in having the Canada authorities deport her back into the United States which meant that when she passed the Canadian border and arrived in the United States she was free again.

Fitzsimmons to day service on the north side. "O. J. SORESENSEN, Mayor."

"In my opinion the carrying out of these orders will not only fail to improve the police service of this city but on the contrary will interfere with the proper discipline in the police department. Moreover there is considerable doubt in my mind as to your authority to make such orders. After the issuance of these orders you express a desire to have a friendly controversy to decide this matter. For that reason I have communicated the matter to the board of police and fire commissioners for their opinion and have requested them also to get the opinion of the attorney general of the state of Wisconsin."

"Hereunto attached you will find a copy of the letter directed to the board."

"Respectfully submitted, J. B. WEBBER, Chief of Police."

Letter to Commission

Below is the letter of the chief to the fire and police commission: "La Crosse, Wis., Sept. 5 1913. To the Honorable Police and Fire Commissioners:

"Gentlemen—On the 29th day of August, 1913, the Honorable Orl J. Sorenson, mayor of the city of La Crosse, issued the following orders. (Orders Nos. 2 and 3.)

"It is claimed by the mayor that these orders were issued for the improvement of the department. I am thoroughly convinced on the contrary that the carrying out of these orders will not be for the best interests of the department but will tend to destroy all discipline."

"Your honorable body on the 8th day of July, 1899, adopted a rule providing that the captain should have charge of the force during the day time and the night sergeant during the night. On several occasions, this rule, with the consent of the board, has been deviated from, but it has been generally carried out. The orders of the mayor, you will notice, are in conflict with the rules of the board."

"There is considerable discussion as to the relative rights and duties of the mayor and chief of police and the board of police and fire commissioners. It is not necessary for me at this time to express my opinion on the subject, but would like to be heard by counsel when the question comes up for discussion. I would also like to have the matter submitted to the attorney general of the state of Wisconsin for his opinion."

"If there is no doubt as to rights of the mayor to make the changes of the kind indicated in the above orders, I will do all in my power to carry the orders into effect to the letter. Therefore I would like to submit this entire matter to your honorable board for an expression of your opinion. This is in accordance with the wishes of the mayor expressed by him yesterday, to have a friendly controversy in the matter."

"For the present I shall refrain from carrying out the orders until the rights of the various parties are established. A copy of this letter has been given to His Honor the Mayor. Attached you will also find a copy of the letter given to the mayor."

"Respectfully submitted, J. B. WEBBER, Chief of Police."

FIVE TRAINS ON TEN MILE TRACK

But it rushed by him and then came the crash.

"I told them at the 'yellow building,'" said Murray; "that I went back six or seven telegraph poles, but I know now that I did not. I could see the rear end of the train. I would have gone back eighteen telegraph poles, in accordance with the rules, had it not been that I heard the repeated whistles calling me. Then I heard No. 9 coming. I had placed my torpedoes and tried to light a fuse. But the express rushed by and a few seconds later came the crash."

In explaining why he did not have a watch, Murray said he had never qualified as a flagman and the requirements of this position had never been explained to him.

How five passenger trains made up mostly of flimsy wooden cars, carrying loads of precious human freight, were packed onto a space of track ten miles long in a dense fog on the morning of the Wallingford wreck in which 21 persons lost their lives, was told to the members of the interstate commerce commission here today.

Out-of-Date Signals These trains were at the mercy of the out of the date "banjo" signals in use on the New Haven. That a committee of engineers employed on the road protested to the officials more than a year ago, on the ground that these signals were not safe, was also told the commissioners.

A new signal system was not installed as a result of this protest.

John H. Kelley, a train dispatcher, told of the packing of trains between Wallingford, Conn., and air line junction. Four trains were between the points, ten miles apart when the first section of number 95 was blocked. Then Kelley released number 95 and the crash followed. The White Mountain express covered the distance from Meriden to Wallingford in seven minutes, Kelley said. This was faster by several minutes than the time made by others. Kelley said he depended on the signals to keep the trains separated.

But Engineer Rufus W. Wands said he could not see the signals at a distance of more than 200 feet. Kelley said he had no instructions to warn engineers to give them special instructions in foggy weather. He depended on the signals. It was Wands who told the commissioner of the protest filed because of these signals and said it was a frequent occurrence for engineers to "drift by" signals in bad weather.

Detailing his trip from Springfield, Mass., under questioning by Attorney List, Engineer Wands of the Bar Harbor express said he went by banjo 23 by about seven car lengths. This was where the wreck occurred. Wands said he had trouble releasing his air brakes in order to start again. "The engine was turned over to me as 'in good condition,'" said Mr. Wands.

Flagman Jailed

Charles H. Murray, flagman of the Bar Harbor express, is in jail, following his formal arrest on a warrant issued by Coroner Mix as a result of the testimony taken by Mix in his secret probe yesterday. Augustus B. Miller, the engineer of the White Mountain express, was out on bail and left his home before eight o'clock in order that he might be on time when called to testify before Commissioner McChord. Murray had not been able to arrange for bail, but hoped to gain his freedom before the day was out.

Coroner Mix was at his office early today. He declared that he had taken the most important evidence, but would resume his inquest at ten o'clock.

Officials Play Tennis

President Elliott of the New Haven was scheduled to appear at a meeting of the board of directors in New York today. He will therefore not be able to call a meeting of the "tennis cabinet" which it was understood today was in the making among the New Haven officials. While the details of the worst wreck on the New Haven in two years were being told behind closed doors yesterday and demands being made by high public officials of the railroad improvements which would stop the slaughter of travelers, President Elliott found time to play tennis, it was learned today. After meeting the newspapermen, Elliott and Vice President Buckland left their offices for a session on the courts. At the hospitals here three victims of the wreck were believed to be dying.

OPERATOR STABS PORTER ON TRAIN

Is Called a "Gink" and Struck by Negro and Responds with Knife Thrusts

James W. Cobb, a Burlington railroad negro porter, is in the hospital in Chicago seriously cut about the face and upper body, and C. M. Townsley, operator, who was on his way to Cassville, Wis., to take charge of the station there, is in jail in Savannah following a free for all fight Tuesday night on Burlington passenger train No. 51 near Cassville.

According to a member of the crew of the passenger train, the negro called Townsley a "gink" just previous to the train reaching Cassville. It is not known whether the negro had known Townsley previous to this meeting, but he made the remark, according to the crew, that he was after such fellows as he. Mr. Townsley is a slightly built man.

The negro stepped up to him and hit him a severe blow on the mouth. Townsley stepped back and reached in his pocket for a small pen knife. In the fight that followed the negro's face was badly cut, and a deep cut was made across the abdomen.

Townsley proceeded to Dubuque and was arrested and held until No. 52 arrived when he was taken back to Savannah. He was given a hearing at once and placed under $1,000 bonds. He could not furnish the said until his father could arrive from Cincinnati.

FEAR TIDAL WAVE HAS DEVASTATED OCRACOCKE ISLAND

Carolina, reported $1,500,000 damage, but no loss of life so far can be ascertained today. Scores of houses were unroofed and even concrete pavements torn up. The huge rain flooded cellars and damaged the electric light plant. It will be weeks before damage to railroad tracks and bridges can be repaired.

U. S. Scouts Rumor

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—While reports received today by the United States life saving service from the Hatteras wireless station, North Carolina, failed to substantiate reports that heavy loss of life had occurred at Ocracoke, N. C., nearby, yesterday's storm. The message gave details of the work of the Ocracoke life saving station in assisting steamers which had sent distress calls.

The message received by Superintendent Kimball of the life saving service, said: "Schooner George Wells wrecked and gone to pie three miles north of Hatteras in during storm. Crew of twenty laid safely, including two women and two children by life saving crew. Hatteras Inlet, Durants and Ocracoke stations. Unknown English steamer ashore off Ocracoke. The masted schooner with one man standing can be seen ten miles Hatteras."

Neither the high powered Arlington wireless station nor the navy diostation received any confirmation of the reports concerning Ocracoke and it was generally believed that there had been any great loss of life at the Ocracoke station, just off the beach and reported inundated, would be the first to report it.

Aids Several Ships

The revenue cutter service was aided by the cutter Seminole that was rendering aid to several vessels reported in distress. One of them was the four masted schooner, named Heidritter, reported eight miles southwest of the Diamond shoal with her rudder broken, topmast gone and two of her crew reported injured.

Officials of the service were inclined to disbelieve reports of loss of life at Ocracoke, inasmuch as the cutter's wireless and the station at Hatteras has made no report.

IN The WORLD OF WOMEN

Among the women who have come under the public notice by reason of their being appointed to the police force, Mrs. M. J. Farley, of Dallas, Texas, has the distinction of being the only one with the rank of police captain. Women interested in civic affairs in Houston, Tex., under the leadership of Mrs. Presley R. Ewing, recently presented Mayor Campbell with a petition signed by 1900 voters asking that an amendment to the city charter be adopted providing for an elective school board composed of men and women. The initiative petition was presented because the women failed to secure the appointment of two of their sex on the school board. Three hundred engagements were announced, it is said, the day following the issue of the royal decree authorizing the new Italian law under which telephone girls are permitted to marry without forfeiting their positions.

LEASE OLD ESTATE FOR BOYS' SCHOOL

Keewatin School to Be Located on the Dousman Homestead at Prairie du Chien

OWNED BY FOUR GENERATIONS

Much of Historic Interest Centers About the Estate; Has Been in the Family 123 Years

M'GREGOR, Ia., Sept. 5.—Much of historic interest is contained in the announcement that the famous Dousman estate at Prairie du Chien has been leased to James H. Kendrigan for ten years to be used as a home for the Keewatin School for boys. The school will be conducted after the manner of the famous New England institutions, Groton and St. Paul's, with a select number of pupils, a staff of resident instructors, home influence and outdoor life the year round. Villa Louis, the Dousman estate at Prairie du Chien, will be the home of the school in the fall and in the spring. In January the boys will be taken to New Smyrna, Florida for the winter term. A summer camp will be located in the northern woods of Wisconsin.

The founding of the school of this character in the Middle West is a new venture. The site chosen for it is both beautiful and historic. Probably few people even in the immediate vicinity of Prairie du Chien know just how much history has been enacted around the big Indian mound on which the Dousman residence has stood for eighty years. The estate at one time comprised 4,000 acres. Beautiful lawns and gardens stretch down to the Mississippi. Around the handsome residence on the mound with its famous gallery of rare paintings are grouped other buildings formerly used as offices, billiard hall, laundry and servants' quarters. A splendid group of brick stables at one time the home of the finest stud of race horses in the Upper Mississippi Valley, was a part of the estate until a year ago when the buildings were partially burned. Fountains and a large swimming pool are on the grounds and a mile race course lies back toward the hills. Four generations of Dousmans have lived on the place. Preceding them the grounds about the big mound had been the scene of much stirring history.

First Settlers In 1784

When the first settlers came to Prairie du Chien in 1784 they built their rude cabins near the mound and the fur trading posts were later erected only a short distance from it. When war broke out between United States and Great Britain in 1812, a detachment of soldiers was sent north from St. Louis by boat to erect a fort at Prairie du Chien. A stockade was put up on top of the mound. The British, hearing of this occupation by the United States troops, sent an army composed of several hundred soldiers and traders and 1,000 Indians to capture the fort. The army came down the Wisconsin river, surprised the little garrison on the mound and after a short siege and some cannonading forced the United States troops to surrender. The Union Jack was hoisted over the fort and its name changed from Fort Shelby to Fort McKaye. A detachment of troops was maintained at the fort for some time. On the signing of the treaty of peace they were ordered to return to Canada.

"THE SPENDTHRIFT"

"The Spendthrift," under the management of America's youngest and most successful dramatic impresario, C. S. Primrose, is one of the special delightful plays, and will be at the La Crosse theater Sunday, September 7, matinee and night.

"The Spendthrift" ranks high among the most interesting of American and London successes not only from a standpoint of extreme cleanliness in atmospheric conditions but also because of its intensely pleasing incidents and natural situations upon which this delightful play is founded. This is the second western tour of Miss Marion Sherwood under the management of Mr. Primrose. Last year Miss Sherwood's delightful work was responsible for the success of "The Thief," under the same management and her clever interpretation of the difficult role is still remembered by the best patrons of the theater as one of the most highly interesting and enjoyable occasions of the season.

The beautiful gowns to be worn by Miss Sherwood in "The Spendthrift" come direct from Paris, where the actress and her mother spent the summer. Supported by a picked cast of English and American players, the coming of Miss Sherwood with her excellent company forecasts an event of which the knowing theater public will take advantage by securing early and choice seat locations.

Predigested Letters.

A woman who went to a hospital for the purpose of undergoing an operation asked for two postcards on the day the operation was to be performed. After having written on both cards she addressed them to her husband and asked her nurse to mail the one it was best to mail the next day. The nurse glanced at the cards and saw that one of them read as follows:

"My Dear Husband—I have had the operation and am doing nicely. Will be at home in a week or two."

On the other card was written:

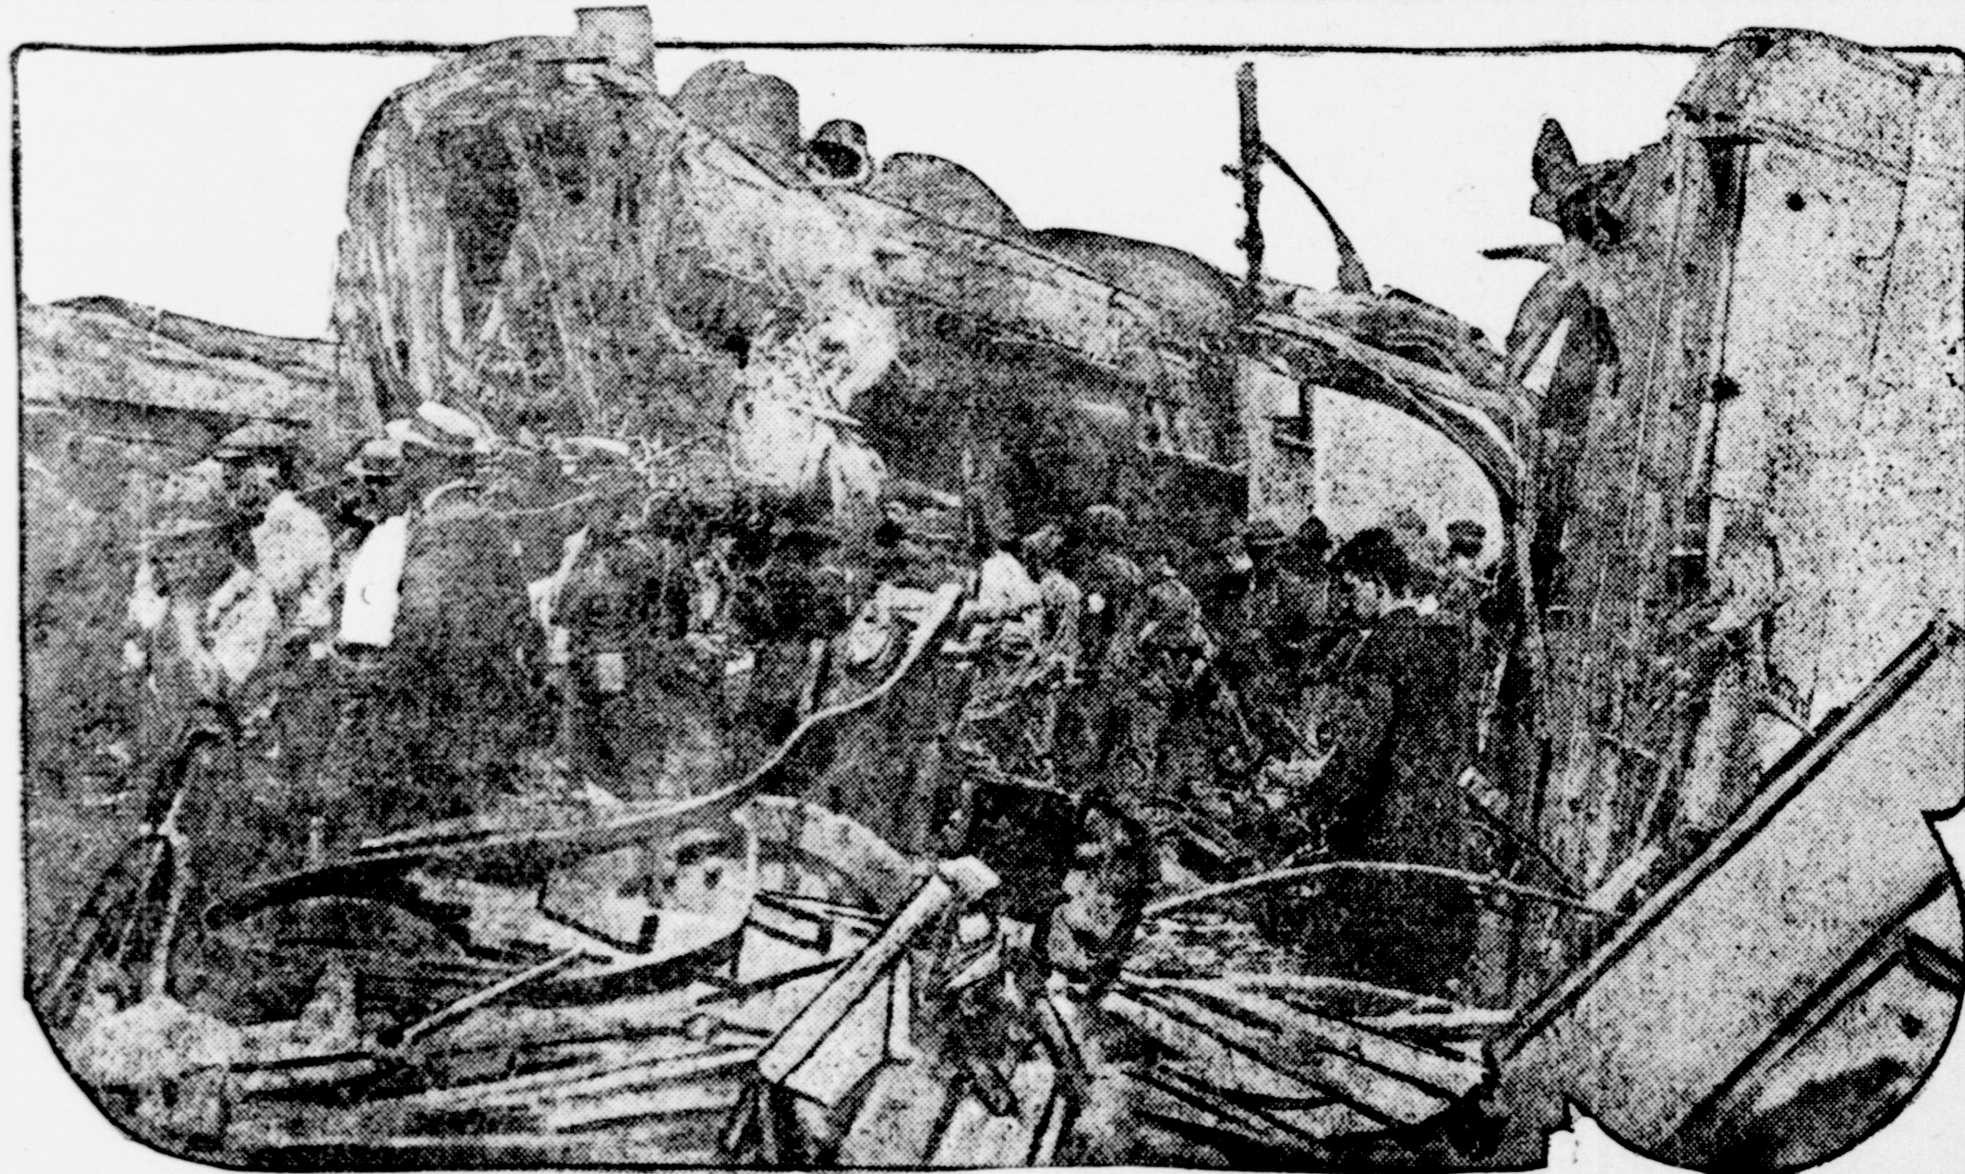

"My Dear Husband—I have had the operation and am sorry to tell you that I did not survive."—Detroit Free Press.

TWENTY-THREE DEAD, FORTY INJURED, TOLL OF BLUNDERING RAILROAD'S LATEST WRECK

(c) Underwood & Underwood.

New Haven Railroad's latest wreck.

The picture shows some of the ruin wrought by the latest wreck on the New Haven railroad, near New Haven, Conn., on Tuesday. The engine of the White Mountain express is seen in the middle of the picture. It crashed through the two rear Pullman cars of the train. At least twenty-three are dead. No other railway in the United States, mile-age considered, has had anything like the number of fatal wrecks that this road has had in the last two years. The last wreck before Tuesday's was on June 12, at Stamford, Conn. Five passengers were killed and twenty injured. The interstate commerce commission is making an investigation.

JOHNSON'S SPINE O. K.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—Jack Johnson, the negro fighter, injured in an automobile collision, was somewhat improved today and his physician said he might be out in a few days. The negro claimed a severe wrench of his back muscles, but the doctor was unable to find any trace of injuries to the spine.

FUGITIVE AUTOISTS HELD FOR ACCIDENT

WAUKESHA, Wis., Sept. 5.—Frank Donahue, 882 Bradford avenue, and Arthur Allen, 558 Bartlett street, Milwaukee, were arraigned in municipal court today charged with running down Ethel Doehler, a stenographer, Tuesday and then failing to stop to lend assistance.

Donahue was driving the car, it is said. Sheriff Edward J. Gibson made the arrest. Although the men do not dispute that they were the drivers of the car, it is intimated they will fight the case on the ground they did not believe the girl was injured.

IMITATES "MOVIE" STAR; GIRL HURT

BAY CITY, Mich., Sept. 5.—Making believe that she was the heroine in an emotional "movie" drama, and that she was being "snapped" by the operator while making a daring escape from a "Blue Beard's" tower, Eva Roscoe, the 10-year old daughter of Bernard Roscoe, fell from a rope on which she was lowering herself from a second story window at her home. Her leg was so badly broken that the bone protruded from the skin. The girl fell about twenty feet, the rope giving way when she was half way down.

On one occasion, just previous to opening in one of the large eastern cities, Joseph Jefferson discharged his property man, Bagley, for humiliating him before a number of friends by familiarly addressing him as "Joey." Bagley got drunk right away, and that night paid his way to the gallery to see Mr. Jefferson present "Rip Van Winkle." The angry frau had just driven poor, destitute Rip from the cottage, when Rip turned, and, with a world of pathos, asked: "Den haf I no interest in dis house?" The house was destitute still, the audience half in tears, when Bagley's cracked voice responded: "Only 80 per cent. Joey—only 80 per cent."

GEORGE M. COHAN IN AUTO SMASH

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 5.—Physicians at the Hartford hospital today announced that George M. Cohan, the actor and playwright, his daughter, Gertrude, Wallace Edginger, the actor, and Francis X. Hope, manager of the Cohan productions, will all recover from the injuries sustained last night when the automobile in which they were riding collided with a heavy garbage cart.

An examination today disclosed that Miss Cohan had suffered a severe scalp wound. Cohan has a dislocated shoulder, an abrasion of the forehead and cuts on his chin and legs. It was necessary to take seven stitches in the cut on Cohan's chin. Edginger had no bones broken but his face was terribly bruised. Both his eyes were closed. Hope's head and body were badly bruised, his right ankle was sprained and his left arm fractured.

BUMPER FRUIT CROP HERE THIS YEAR

Reports Reach Here from Farmers in La Crosse County that Crop Exceeds Last Year's

DUCHESS MOST PLENTIFUL OF ALL

Wild and Tame Grapes and Plums Follow with Yield Far in Excess of Expectations of Farmers

Judging from the reports reaching here from farmers all over La Crosse and neighboring counties, and from the overloaded market wagons that are driving daily to the market, La Crosse will witness this year one of the best fruit seasons in the history of this part of the state.

From the abundance of fruit of all varieties that is being brought to the city and being shipped to other markets, the bumper crop of last year which was recorded as the best for a long time is being outdone. The moderate weather and frequent temperate rains that have fallen during the entire season have made conditions for the fruit raiser ideal.

The small coulee farmers that abound for miles up and down the Mississippi on the edges of the bluffs, say that their apple trees are fairly bending to the ground with the luscious fruit. Some difficulty has been encountered by them in picking and selling the fruit. Their expectations were for not as good a crop as this year has brought forth, and with their other work in the harvest field, to which they devote the most of their time, they have not been able to bring the money producing burdens to the market.

The harvest apple led off the season, beating all previous records, and closely followed by the Duchess, the favorite and most thriving variety in this community. According to fruit raisers near the city the latter species will be fully as plentiful. The Red Astrucan is reported to be a comer.

The season in La Crosse county for wild and tame grapes promises to be an excellent one. A story was told on the market yesterday by a farmer living near Barre Mills that near his residence the grapes, although yet green, were so plentiful that one could hardly see the vines. Every grape on the vines seems fully developed.

Practically the same thing is said of the tame grapes. Although they have not yet started to arrive at the market reports of their plentifulness are everywhere. Vines that never before bore heavily, this year are loaded to the ground and the bunches are reported to be very large.

Wine makers in the vicinity of the city are making preparations for a large harvest and buying barrels and bottles to hold the precious essence as soon as it is ready to be made.

The season for the harvesting of plums is at present at its height. Although there are not a great many plum trees planted on farms near this city, farmers that have cultivated this variety of fruit have found that their trees are bearing as heavily if not more heavily than in any previous year. In many places the small red plums are reported to be as large as small eggs. The ideal weather has had a great deal to do with this product of the trees also.

As with the fruit, so it is with the nuts, and those who like the delicacy will not have to worry any about high prices this year. Hazel nuts, hickory nuts, walnuts and other varieties are in abundance everywhere and in reckless profusion. There will surely be some rare sport in store for gatherers during the coming fall months.

Hundreds of cantaloupe and watermelon have gone to waste in La Crosse county this year on account of an over supply due to a larger crop than was expected.

Before this year's harvest of the delicate fruit is over, take a trip some afternoon to the country. If you can't drive, walk, and you'll surely be repaid in the sight that will greet your eyes in every farm yard and small orchard along the road.

Feeding a Feeding Patient.

Macleod Feasley in the London Lancet gives an amusing instance of the astuteness of the late Dr. Dabbs. When in practice in the Isle of Wight he was called into consultation over a hysterical fasting girl, with whom no one could do anything. Dabbs, to the annoyance of all, won her confidence by telling her that she was quite right to refuse to eat. Then he elicited the fact that she suffered from thirst and casually remarked that milk was the best thirst quencher he knew. He thus obtained her promise to take whatever medicine he sent her, and that medicine, consisting of strong brine, she improved in health on about twenty-four glasses of milk a day!

Striking a Fish.

The secret of striking a fish, especially a trout, which bites quickly, whether in brook, river or lake, is to give a sharp upturn of the wrist. This will move the rod or bait only two or three inches and will not jerk it from the water. If you miss the fish will follow the few inches, not being frightened, and in the majority of cases will be hooked at once. The quick jerking of the bait from the water almost invariably scares a trout—result, a dark streak disappearing down the stream.

The poker player should have the proper calling cards.

U. C. T. WORKS TO GET STEEL CARS

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 5.—It will be welcome news to the traveling men of the country when the railroads adopt steel passenger cars exclusively, according to C. W. Hodson, supreme past counselor of the United Commercial Travelers.

"Safety of travel has been one of the principal subjects discussed at every session of our supreme council," he told the United Press today. "Our committees have been working both independently and in conjunction with other organizations and have tried in every way to hasten the adoption of modern railway equipment. It is strange that steel cars have not been adopted earlier, when you consider that it is more economical to maintain and operate them, not to mention the question of safety."

TIED TO MOTHER BUT BOYS DROWN

JANESVILLE, Wis., Sept. 5.—Although tied to her waist by a long rope, Alfred, aged 8, and Rudolph, aged 2, sons of Mrs. Fred Stiff, Albany, Wis., fell from a ledge and drowned in Sugar river today.

When the children toppled into the water the mother pulled them ashore and rowed four miles where she obtained medical aid, but physicians pronounced them dead.

Power of Deceiving.

There is a Brooklyn woman who possesses a servant who is a model in respects save one—in that she is not too truthful.

Lately the mistress has been using all her eloquence to make Nora see the error of deceitfulness. But at last she had to own herself beaten when Nora, with a beaming smile, turned and in a most cajoling tone said:

"Sure, now, mum, an' wot de ye suppose the power of deavin' was givin' us for?"

CONSERVATION OF HEALTH OF CHILDREN IS THE SUBJECT IN TALK TO THE TEACHERS

Dr. J. M. Furstman, health commissioner, has prepared a comprehensive article on the conservation of children's health, the first installment of which appeared in The Tribune Wednesday. The article is intended as information for La Crosse school teachers to whom, to a great degree, is assigned the responsibility for the welfare of a large majority of the city's young. This is the final installment.

Tuberculosis, most commonly pulmonary tuberculosis, or consumption, is a very common and very fatal disease, attacking all ages. It is generally contracted from one who has the disease or from food and drink in which the specific organism is present. In our state tuberculosis is responsible for one death in every seven. The germ is found in the sputum, sometimes in the faeces, and frequently in the sweat. A cold which settles on the chest and does not become cured but remains for weeks and months should attract suspicion. The child who coughs daily, should be sent to a physician for examination especially if the cheeks become flushed in the afternoon and fatigue is easily induced. The pale, anemic child with a narrow chest is a likely subject for tuberculosis. No child with this disease should be permitted to attend school unless there is special provision in the shape of an open air room. Good food, pure air, sunshine, plenty of outdoor exercise and only a moderate amount of mental work are the enemies of tuberculosis. Teachers sometimes contract tuberculosis from their scholars. Of course, no one with tuberculosis should be allowed to teach, for not only will the pupils be endangered, but teaching is probably the worst thing a person with tuberculosis could do. Tuberculosis of the glands and joints is the most common form in children, and they exhibit a marked tendency to heal spontaneously if the general health of the child is maintained.

Scarlet Fever

Scarletina, or scarlet fever, are different terms for the same disease, a very common affection of childhood. Most of the deaths occur in children under five years of age, but a large number occur in children of school age. Sore throat, fever, a rash resembling a general blush or slight burn, are some of the symptoms of scarlet fever. Vomiting sometimes ushers in the disease. It is probably infectious throughout the whole course. There are two important things about scarlet fever which should be remembered. First, that it occurs in very mild forms which are equally as dangerous as the more severe types as far as danger of dissemination is concerned. The second important fact is that no patient should be allowed to return to school after an attack of scarlet fever as long as any discharge or any unhealthy condition of the nose, mouth or ear exists, or any disqualification or scaling continues. Scarlet fever is carried by acute cases, mild cases, discharged cases with unhealthy noses and throats, and carriers who have some unhealthy condition of these parts, but have not suffered from the disease. When scarlet fever is present in a community, be on the watch for cases of sore throat and running noses or ears.

Diphtheria

Diphtheria is a disease rather closely relating to scarlet fever. It is caused by a bacillus which generally grows in the throat near the tonsils, and produces a membrane of a dirty gray appearance. The bacillus does not affect all children equally, some may only have a reddened throat, and go about their play as usual, while, at the other extreme, death may occur in a few hours. Diphtheria bacilli are also found in children's throats who have never complained of any sickness. A person who has diphtheria is dangerous as long as these bacilli remain in the throat, although he may seem perfectly healthy. Because of these facts, it is proper to release a patient from quarantine only after his throat has been examined for these germs, and they are found to have disappeared. This can only be done in a laboratory. In both, diphtheria and scarlet fever, as the germs are in the throat, they are easily carried from one person to another on the rim of the common drinking cup, on the pencil which passes from mouth to mouth, and in talking and sneezing when little droplets of water are discharged. Any child with a sore throat should be excluded from school when diphtheria is present in the community, and indeed, if this were done at all times, the incidence of contagious disease in the schools would be lessened. Diphtheria used to be a scourge like Yellow Fever and Cholera, but through the efforts of some faithful and earnest workers, an anti-toxin has been found which neutralizes the poison given off by the bacilli of diphtheria and saves thousands of lives each year. Not only does it save the lives of those who have diphtheria but it prevents the development of the disease if given in small doses to those who are exposed.

Measles

Measles is the most contagious eruptive disease of childhood and attacks nearly every one who is not protected by a previous attack. There are two kinds of measles, the serious form and German or "three day" measles. We often think of measles as a mild disease, but this is a wrong idea, as measles causes many deaths and more result from complications such as pneumonia, pleurisy and consumption, to say nothing of a host of others. No one who has seen a severe case of measles will regard it lightly. About two weeks after exposure an attack of measles is ushered in like a cold in the head. There is a running at the eyes, and mouth, and hard dry cough. Inside the cheeks an eruption can be seen about two days after the onset.

The skin eruption itself resembles a large number of insect bites, and is seen over the whole surface. As the disease may be transmitted from the very onset, children with beginning colds in the head should be excluded from school if there are measles in the community. German measles are not nearly as dangerous and do not show symptoms of cold in the head. Measles, like diphtheria and scarlet fever, may occur in very mild forms, and the discharges from the mouth and nose are most infectious.

Whooping Cough

Whooping cough is another disease we are apt to regard lightly, but which has caused more deaths in this country than scarlet fever. Its complications also lead to many deaths. It is most common in children under school age and is most fatal in the very young. A whoop at the end of a coughing spell is the characteristic symptom of the disease. It is transmitted from one pupil to another by the fine droplets or spray discharged in coughing, and is not so infectious as measles during the earlier stage. The longer a child escapes whooping cough, the less liable is the attack to prove fatal; so that the habit of exposing a child in order that he may have the disease once and for all is not only silly, but may lead to his death. Cases of whooping cough should be kept at home for several weeks, and this will not only prevent the infection of others, but will give the sick child an opportunity to throw off the disease, escape the complications and grow up to healthy adult life.

Diseases of the Eye

There are a number of diseases of the eye which are easily transmitted from one pupil to the others. Some of these are very dangerous and may lead to the impairment and often loss of the eye-sight. An attack of measles often leaves a pupil with defective vision. Diseases of the eye may be transmitted from one pupil to another, by common towels and handkerchiefs. A child with red, inflamed, watery eyes should be sent home and examined by a physician.

I have not taken up the subject of what should be done with the brothers and sisters and others exposed to contagious diseases, because this is a matter resting with the health department. It is your duty, however, to assist the health department as much as possible. Sometimes when an epidemic of disease is prevalent, the teacher is asked to report to the health department all pupils who have been absent from school for more than three days, and not to readmit them until they secure a certificate from a physician or the health department, that they are not suffering from a communicable disease. In this connection, I wish to emphasize the necessity for regular medical inspection of school children. Whenever this has been done, good results have been obtained, and the efficiency of school work increased. You should throw your influence in favor of medical inspection on every possible occasion, both for your own sake, and for that of your pupils.

In conclusion, I wish to emphasize certain points already mentioned.

That infection enters and leaves the body in the secretions of the mouth, nose, throat, intestines, bladder and through the skin.

That when diphtheria or scarlet fever is present in the community, all children with sore throats or running noses or ears should be excluded from school; and no child return-

Science and Sound Fact.

"The workings of the human mind when asleep are full of wonder," remarked a scientist who was paying a visit to an acquaintance. "Have you ever started up from a sound dreamless sleep, with every sense on the alert and with your whole being thrilled with a vivid yet indefinable feeling that something was wrong and instant action required?"

"Often," replied his hostess, "and in nearly every case I have found that I was awakened by the fumbling of my husband's key at the front door!"

A person with a big head is also usually of the light headed variety.

About Stamps.

Do not lick stamps. The best way is to moisten the envelope and not the stamp. When stamps stick together, do not soak them apart, but lay them on a smooth surface with a thin paper over them. This separates without destroying the gum.

Stubborn Case?

Mrs. Mabel Hashenberger, of Bogue, Kas., says: "I suffered for years with ulceration and womanly troubles. CARDUI helped me so much! I am now well and strong, and don't need any more medicine of any kind. If it wasn't for CARDUI I wouldn't be healthy like I am. It is a wonderful remedy. I am very thankful for what it did in my case, and tell my friends about it, for I know they will be surprised at the way it will benefit them." HERE'S CHILD OF N. Y.'S MAYOR; CAN YOU GUESS THE GENDER?

Marian Gaynor at the wheel of her motor car.

Miss Marian, the fourteen-year-old daughter of Mayor Gaynor of New York, doesn't like to be too feminine. So every once in a while she dresses up as you see her in the picture, and the casual observer wonders whether she belongs to the masculine or the feminine gender.

Miss Gaynor never is more happy than when indulging in some outdoor sport. She is a clever equestrienne, and is fond of motoring and swimming. At playing golf and tennis she is an adept. Her costume in the photograph consists of the regulation riding "breeches" partly hidden by a long coat. Riding boots complete the combination.

REVOLT IN NICARAGUA

SAN JUAN DEL SUR, Nicaragua, Sept. 5.—Sudden military movements to Managua and Leon followed discovery by the government of a liberal revolutionary plot. It is reported simultaneous uprisings had been planned at those two points.

DEMY POPE'S ILLNESS

LONDON, Sept. 5.—A special dispatch from Rome today denied that manufacturers of Paterson shot himself in the right temple early today and died soon afterward. The family was unable to assign any reason for his act. Blondell was one of the manufacturers who have held out against the silk workers in the strike here and it is said that he was involved in financial troubles.

TEACHER BECOMES MURDEROUS MANIAC

Kills Wife and Four Children and Then Fires the Village and Massacres Inhabitants

STUTTGART, Germany, Sept. 5.—Murdering his wife and four children as they slept, a demented school teacher named Wagner, living in the village of Degerloch early today went to the neighboring village of Mülhausen and shot down more than a score of persons after setting fire to their houses.

The villagers were awakened at 1:30 a. m. by fires in a dozen or more dwellings and as they rushed out into the streets, Wagner opened fire on them.

Eight men and women were instantly killed and eleven seriously injured, five perhaps fatally.

The madman was finally overpowered and almost beaten to death before officers rescued him from the angry mob. Even after his arrest several attempts were made to lynch him. A search revealed two pistols and 220 cartridges in the man's pockets.

MAY BAR PANKHURST

AS FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE SHE MAY NOT BE ADMITTED TO U. S. WHEN SHE COMES TO LECTURE

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, leader of English suffragettes may have a militant task on her hands when she tries to get into the United States in October. Her first converts will have to be officials at Ellis Island unless New York suffragists win them to the cause in the meantime.

This developed today when the suffragists found themselves face to face with the United States immigration laws which bar fugitives from justice. Although Mrs. Pankhurst is not being sought in France as a fugitive, she is technically a fugitive from England.

Superintendent Baker of Ellis Island said the officials had not decided what would be done with Mrs. Pankhurst. "We will have to wait until she gets here," he said. "Then it is up to the inspector to decide whether he thinks she ought to land."

MILLIONAIRES BUY CLUB STEEL CARS

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Two new armor plate, all steel cars will soon be ready for the Car club, it was announced today. The club, composed of millionaire commuters, who travel on the New Haven railroad, became alarmed last fall, after the Westport wreck and decided that it was too risky for them to ride in wooden cars. Headed by Percy Rockefeller, son of William Rockefeller, the members held a special meeting and had two special "wreck proof cars" ordered. They will be ready either this fall or early next spring. The Car club was organized to give privacy to the millionaire commuters. Their special cars are attached to regular trains, but only the members of the club can ride in them.

No More School Slates.

Remember the old school slates, bound in red flannel to prevent the noise of slate rattling that used to become unbearable, until manufacturers found how to muffle them? Stores selling school supplies used to carry great stocks of them, for it was a rare day in a room that did not see a slate or two broken; but where are they all now? Since the boards of health decided that they were insanitary and decreed against them, the whole tribe has disappeared.

Rest in Forgetfulness.

"Who does not love to shuffle off time and its concerns at intervals—to forget who is president and who is governor, what race he belongs to, what language he speaks—and to listen to the great liquid metronome as it beats its solemn measure, steadily swinging, when the solo or duet of human life began, and to swing just as steadily after the human chorus has died out and man is a fossil on its shores."—The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table.

They Take No Chances.

The Chinese blacksmith thinks a great deal of his anatomy, when shoeing horses, which are not numerous in China. He is so skittish in doing a job of shoeing and so dubious about handling the hoofs of the animal, that, when shoeing is required, the horse is strung up with ropes in such a manner as to prevent kicking. No exceptions are made, even though the horse be a scrawny street plug of advanced age.

Happiness.

Those who have the most of happiness think the least about it. But in thinking about and in doing their duty happiness comes—because the heart and mind are occupied with earnest thought that touches at a thousand points the beautiful and sublime realities of the universe.

T. R. COMMENDS GOVERNOR SULZER

Denounces Murphy and Urges that Sulzer Answer the Charges Against Him

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 5.—Governor Sulzer has received a letter of commendation from Colonel Roosevelt in which the former president denounced Charles F. Murphy, Tammany leader, and suggested that Sulzer answer the Tammany charges "as soon as possible."

"We have never seen a more startling example of the power of invisible government under the present system," wrote Colonel Roosevelt, "and, my dear governor, you owe it to yourself and those who supported you to take the earliest opportunity to answer charges made against you."

LOST FOR YEARS IS DECLARED DEAD

KENOSHA, Wis., Sept. 5.—In the county court here this morning John Lynch, one time prominent resident of Kenosha, was declared "legally dead" and Judge George W. Taylor directed the division of his estate, valued at $2,000. Lynch left home in 1892, stating he was going west to purchase timber lands. Shortly after a letter was received from him from a small town in Iowa and this was the last heard from him. During the past twenty years search for Lynch has been made in all parts of the nation. His relatives believe he was killed by Indians in the Dakotas.

HONEYMOON SHORT AGED PAIR REPENTS

COUDERAY, Wis., Sept. 5.—Mrs. C. Craig of Burchwood, 65 years old, and Alfred Raynor of Crooked Rapids, 83 years old, who were married a short time ago and were the oldest couple ever married in Sawyer county, have parted again after living together for six days on the groom's farm, Crooked Rapids, near here. Both claim cruel treatment.

CAN'T QUIT JOB

PETOSKEY, Mich., Sept. 5.—As President Wilson has not yet appointed a postmaster for Petoskey, C. J. Pailthorpe, whose resignation from that office was to have taken effect, has been obliged to continue service. The appointment is expected within a few days.

A Way They Travel in England.

For some reason or other the servant had become discontented and, while the family was out one afternoon, vanished with her belongings, says the Manchester Guardian. The lady of the house naturally wrote to the girl's parents at once, so that they could look after their daughter. She received a prompt reply:

Respected Madam—She came here today. I gave her a good hiding and am sending her back by early train tomorrow. Trusting this finds you well, as it leaves me.

In the rural districts, it seems, corporal punishment is still in vogue, and erring children with not more than a quarter of a century's experience of life are liable to it.

Costly Comment.

"You can't joke with a woman. I remarked to my wife last night that I wished some one would invent hook-less gowns."

"Well, what happened?"

"She said my remark reminded her that there were a couple of gownless hooks in her closet, and now I'm in for a thundering big dressmaker's bill."—Boston Transcript.

Family Pride.

"There's an awful lot of family pride about Bob Beasley."

"How so?"

"Why, his wife is such a bad cook her stuff usually gives him indigestion. And when the neighbors ask him what's wrong with him he always tells 'em it's a mysterious case of ptomaine poisoning."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Got His Reward.

"George," said his fiancée, "is your watch correct?"

"Yes," replied George, with a merry laugh. "It is keeping better time since I put your picture inside the case."

"Oh, you flatterer! How could that be?"

"Well, you see, when I placed your picture inside the case I added another jewel!"

SHY ON OYSTERS ADVISES KRAFT

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 5.—Boll 'em before you eat 'em. And don't eat 'em too early. Wait until the middle of October, or, to be safe, wait until the first freeze before you eat 'em.

This was the advice given out by Health Commissioner F. A. Kraft. By "em" is meant the succulent bivalve, or in common parlance, the oyster, which made its bow in to exclusive restaurant circles. Dr. Kraft does not recommend the boiling process as a safeguard against typhoid germs as much as he does against the preservative used to keep oysters in shipping, which, he said, tends to produce diarrhoeal conditions in sensitive constitutions.

COLOR CRAZE WANES AS SUMMER WAXES

Those of us who have a penchant for quiet color schemes uttered last spring a strong protest, when we became almost indignant, when we were told that Bulgarian coloring was to be the rage of the summer. Unwillingness changed to bewilderment when the new Futurist, Post-Impressionist and Cubist schemes made their advent. But gradually many of us, who at first condemned the gaudy riot of color, in which orange held combat with green and blue with purple, enthusiastically embraced it. And the feminine portion of the world at least, bent its knees in obedience to Fashion's behest.

Dame Fashion has a capricious spirit. Her moods are an earnest, not of principle, but of fancy. No sooner was this frenzy of color accepted than she voted it a nightmare, inartistic and distressing. She would have none of it. So back she swung to her old reliable black and white and the various half-tones that follow in their train. And as summer was under way, and nature had already made lavish use of her color tubes, the quieter tones were a timely relief, even if we should return to our gay tints in the fall.

Very refreshing on a midsummer day is the neutral tint of the frock first illustrated. The shade chosen was gray, and the material eponge. Black satin was used for collar, cuffs and girdle, and shadow lace for the tie. The waist is fashioned on Balkan lines, now so fashionable for general wear. The skirt has close fitting front and back panel and narrow lines at waist, hips and hem. It is one of the few models intended particularly for outdoor sports, morning and business.

Frocks for afternoon might very appropriately be called by our mothers evening dresses—not, however, by our great-grandmothers, whose afternoon dresses approached the evening style quite as closely as do our own in their décolletage, diaphanous shoulder effects and wisps of sleeves. So history is repeating itself. Chiffon, mousseline de soie, tulle and lace are the fabrics chosen for these waists, tunics and over dresses. The waists are very low in front and very transparent about the neck and shoulders. The sleeves are such in name only. They are frequently but a few inches long and also of transparent flimsiness. The gloves worn with these sleeves should extend almost to the shoulders. Since the shoulder drapery has become a smart style feature and reaches well over the arm, a small, closely fitted sleeve cap is inserted in the waist drapery, or attached to the underwaist or cachet to prevent exposure of the undergarment.

Many of the skirts for wear with these lovely sheer bodies are made of silk or soft satin. They are wrapped about the form in folds over the hips and in narrow lines about the hem, and are slashed at front, sides or back to permit of easy walking. It is at the hem where the sharp contrast is made between afternoon and evening frocks, as no trains are seen on gowns for afternoon wear. It is rare when any of the material of the wrapped skirt appears above the high waistline unless in the folds of the girdle or in fluted, pleated and pointed effects. Skirts of mousseline de soie, chiffon and net accompany waists of similar materials. When the development is in these fabrics they are almost invariably flounced. These flounces may be pleated or gathered, as preferred, and extend from waistline to hem in two, three or more tiers. The three-tier skirt is at present, most fashionable. A wide ribbon girdle accompanies this style of frock.

Although much has been written of the girdle, "the last word" remains to be said, as new methods of tying or ornamenting are continually being introduced. At present a girdle that has won much favor is brought loosely about the waist in soft, crushed effect and terminates in wire butterfly bows at center front and back, the ends being folded underneath and attached to the lower edge of the tunic. It is made of tulle printed gauze, embroidered chiffon of soft velvet or satin, the softness of the fabric being the prime essential of the girdle.

But afternoon frocks of perisab fabric, although preferred, are not ways most serviceable. They soil easily and cleaners' bills come high. For this reason many women prefer silk frocks of rather dark tone. Such a frock may be seen in the second illustration. French blue novelty motif was the material chosen. The waist is attractively trimmed with shadow lace inserts, and neck flounce comes well over the bust. It has a stylized back yoke, and droops effectively over the black satin girdle both back and front. The skirt has front drape and applied panel. The back laid in soft pleats. The style will quite as smart for fall and midwinter wear as for midsummer.

Chicago Grain Review
CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Wheat started lower in the absence of news from Liverpool, cable trouble delaying the foreign market report, but when communication was restored and Liverpool futures were reported slightly higher, futures in the local pit rallied slightly. However, the trade was expecting materially increased prices abroad and when the cable showed only a slight advance the market here eased off and at noon prices were 1/4c under those at yesterday's close.
Corn started firm this morning, but country offerings were somewhat better and in the forenoon prices went down 1/4c to 3/4c.
Oats taking its tone from wheat, was easier after a firm opening and lost 1/4c to 3/4c in the forenoon.
There was good buying of provisions and prices were a trifle higher Varnish Candles.

A good way to make your candles last longer than usual is the following, says the Montreal Star: Hold each candle by the wick and give it a coat of white varnish. Then lay candles away for a day or so to harden. The varnish prevents the grease from running and preserves the life of the candle many hours.

HIRE AMERICAN COACH

GERMAN ATHLETIC COMMISSION NOW IN U. S. SIGNS FORMER WISCONSIN HURDLER FOR FIVE YEARS

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—The German athletic commission, touring the United States for pointers on how to win future Olympics, today exhibited with much glee a five year contract with Dr. Alvin C. Kraenzlein former University of Wisconsin and University of Pennsylvania star, holder of two world's hurdle records and one of the best all-round athletes during the late 90's.

Kraenzlein will be advisory coach over all German athletics, with headquarters in Berlin. Four assistants, working under him, will scour the empire for likely Olympic material. It is reported that he will receive $50,000 for his five years service.

The German athletic authorities, who are to be in Chicago until Sunday, wired Kraenzlein, who came to Chicago last night from New York and affixed his signature to the contract.

SPORTS

Watching The Scoreboard

(By Hal Sheridan)
Somebody asks if fathers and bridegrooms are going to gum up the Giants' run on the stretch and give the Phillies a chance to close up the gap.

Father Marquard was hammered to various sections of the lot by the Brooklyn Dodgers and the first game of the double header went glimmering.

Newlywed Doyle was back in the game, but got but two hits in eight times at bat in the double entertainment.

The Pirates and Cardinals pulled off the other double header in the National league and broke even. The second game went ten innings and was broken up only when Carey tripped and scored on Butler's single.

Vean Gregg and Ty Cobb ended the day even up so far as their part in the twelve inning tussle between the Tigers and Naps was concerned. Gregg fanned Cobb three times but when Ty came up in the final inning he drove out the hit that scored Crawford with the winning run.

Forgetting his bunion, Rollie Zeider stole home while Gallia was winding up in the seventh inning of the Yankees' Washington game. The run proved to be just what was needed to win and everybody but Gallia knew it was coming. He was too busy untangling himself to take notice.

The Red Sox broke all records for ingratuity when they borrowed the Athletics' bats and uniforms, and then beat them in both games of a double header.

Plank was driven to cover in the first game and the Athletics did not have a chance against Bedient in the second. Believing Moseley after the second inning, Bedient let the Mackmen down without a hit, and did not allow a man to reach first base.

Recruit Schwenck of the Browns made his start with an eleven inning victory over the White Sox. The Sox outbatted the Browns twelve hits to six, but Hal Chase muffed up things with an error which was followed by a rally resulting in four runs.

MORAN IS SULKY

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—A hitch developed today in the plans of several athletic clubs to stage a bout between Frank Moran and Gunboat Smith when some of Moran's friends let it be known that he had not forgotten the California decision in favor of Smith. Moran's friends have always said it was unfair and until this sore spot is healed it is certain no progress will be made in bringing the two fighters together.

LIKE NAP ROOKY

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—The Cubs, returning from their exhibition trip to Grand Rapids, expressed the opinion that Abe Bowman, the Grand Rapids twirler, who has been purchased by the Cleveland Naps, has the stuff to make good. Bowman fanned the mighty Zimmerman three times and made the Cubs exert themselves to the limit to win a 3 to 2 victory.

Stain Remover.

It is sometimes difficult to keep the kitchen paper free from grease stains. They may be removed entirely if a mixture of pipe clay and water made the consistency of cream is spread over them and allowed to remain overnight. In the morning it should be removed with a clean brush or cloth.

KIND DEEDS.

A little thinking shows us that the deeds of kindness we do are effective in proportion to the love we put into them. More depends upon the motive than upon the gift. If the thought be selfish, if we expect compensation or are guilty of close calculation, the result will be like the attitude of mind which invited it.

Sugar and Old Age.

The belief is gaining ground in many quarters that if you wish to stave off old age and to have the feeling of perennial youth and gayety, no matter what your actual years may be, you cannot do better than eat plenty of sugar. One of the pioneers of this theory is Professor Metchnikoff, who has made exhaustive experiments to prove his statements. There are some who even assert that not only does the frequent eating of sugar keep one from growing old, but that if a man or woman will begin the sugar treatment, even after senility has set in, the effect will be so great as to amount to a complete change in his or her character—Exchange.

DESPAIR.

Despair is not only cowardly, but it is absolutely useless. Despair is a mood which requires the lack of five qualities—courage, love, integrity, fortitude and intelligence—if it is to continue in possession. Any one of these five qualities can conquer despair, and, though there are circumstances in which the fight will be sharp at first, the victory is sure.

Word was received today from Miss Alma Wyke, who was called home yesterday, that her mother died this morning at three o'clock.

Word was received from Miss Desmond, who is at home on account of the illness of her mother, that there is little improvement. There is said to be little hope for her recovery.

A new course in millinery has been a popular drawing card and so has the manual training course. More people have tried to get into the classes than can be accommodated. The manual training instructors are working from eighty-three to four with every room filled to capacity.

The commercial department is showing a wonderful increase. The classes are packed to their limit and there are students who have not yet been accommodated. The German course shows a surprising increase and as usual the English classes are large and popular.

The L. D. S. will have its meeting of the year tonight. It will be the inauguration of officers and an address by the new president, Mr. Walker, in addition to debate. The question for the debate is, "Resolved, That the women of Wisconsin be granted the ballot." Affirmative, Dickens and Oyen; Negative, Bloom and Beust.

Too Quick With Comment. Riggs (facetiously)—"This is a picture of my wife's first husband—'Silly looking guy! But I didn't know your wife was married before she met you.' Riggs—wasn't. This is a picture of me when I was twenty-five."
